Local Red Cross Appeals For Japan

THE PUBLIC:

The immeasurable tragedy of Japan, the destruction of great cities their populations calls to the great heart of America for sympathy and President Coolidge advises our countrymen to use the Red Cross to rdinate our help and make it immediately available. Contributions ld be quickly made and will be received by E. E. Oughetree, Treasurer e Ulster County Chapter, A. R. C., at the Red Cross Office; Mrs. C. W. brouck, Secretary, 44 Main street, Kingston, N. Y., and forwarded with uch to the American Red Cross Society at Washington.

I hope our people will sense the great progressive part Japan has ed in the world; how much we owe to that progress and how much our d will and assistance will mean in the hour of her overwhelming dis- r.

I hope the response will be general.

I am sending the treasurer a check for $25.

MARTIN CANTINE, Chairman,
Ulster County Chapter, A. R. C.

SKS WEAVER TWO QUESTIONS

Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 3, 1923.

tor Freeman:

Kindly grant me space to ask Mr. aver two questions:

re not properly-accredited dele- s to a county convention more resentative of the will of the ers and better qualified to pass the eligibility of candidates for e than gum-shoe candidates, who k, shall we say, notoriety, in the maries?

Why, then, Mr. Weaver, were you broad enough to have your name sented, along with the others, for office you now clamor for, and, h them, abide by the result?

One request, Mr. Editor, please in print the questions when Mr. aver answers.

happened to be in attendance at h Democratic and Republican nty conventions. Was not each de up with as high and represen- re type of man as Ulster county produce? This question need be answered. Those gatherings se me to ask you the above ques- ns.

MAYOR ASKS THAT BUSINESS BE SUSPENDED FOR GAME TOMORROW

For the first time in the history of any of the towns in the Hudson river valley a big league team is to play in Kingston on Wednesday afternoon when the Philadelphia Nationals clash with the Kingston Colonials. Poughkeepsie and Newburgh have made unsuccessful efforts in the past to obtain a big league team. Today Mayor Walter P. Crane issued the following proclamation:

As it is a very unusual thing to have a National League baseball team play in cities of the size of Kingston, it has been suggested that business places generally, so far as practicable, close at 3:30 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, September 5. The game will be called at 4:30 o'clock.

This is the first time that a big league team has played in a Hudson river town, and the game here that day has been sanctioned by Federal Judge Landis due to the excellent record made by the Kingston Colonials the past three seasons.

Therefore, I, Walter P. Crane, mayor of the City of Kingston, request that business generally be suspended at that hour so that those who desire may attend.

Signed, WALTER P. CRANE, Mayor.

Dated, September 4, 1923.

STEEP ROCKS BATTLE CASE

Is Adjourned for Two Weeks as Fred Sydnor, One of Participants, is in Hospital With Fractured Skull—Is Operated On.

The battle of Steep Rocks which led to the arrest of Fred Sydnor and Walter Harris, two brickyard negroes, on a charge of assault in the second degree, was not aired in police court today as Sydnor is in the Kingston City Hospital with a fractured skull. Chief of Police J. Allan Wood informed Judge Schirick that Sydnor would be operated on at the hospital.

Walter Harris, the negro who is held on the charge of hurling the brick which fractured Sydnor's skull, had his hearing adjourned to the same time, and furnished bail in the sum of $1,000.

William Thompson, the negro who was slashed by Sydnor, was in court and displayed his slashes to Judge Schirick. He was cut on the arm and body. One of the cuts is six inches long and very deep. He was told to appear again in two weeks when Sydnor, if living and able to be out of the hospital, would be arraigned on the assault charge.

The battle started Sunday afternoon and resulted in a riot call being sent to police headquarters.

TANNERSVILLE PURCHASES TRACTOR AND SNOW PLOW

The village board of Tannersville has purchased a new ten-ton Holt tractor and a new ten ton Sargent snow plow for use in that district the coming winter. The outfit should help materially in keeping the highway open from Palenville to Hunter and through the Notch.

Woman Hurt Monday.

Mrs. Mary Cutler of New York was injured in an auto accident on the Platte Clove Mountain road Monday afternoon when the Dodge sedan she was in left the road and upset. Mrs. Cutler's right hand was badly cut and she was probably saved from bleeding to death by the arrival of Commissioner Enright from the New York police camp at Tannersville, who applied a tourniquet, stopping the bleeding. The injured woman was brought to the Kingston City Hospital for further treatment.

Dance at Eddyville.

The usual Wednesday night dance will take place at Baldwin's Hall, Eddyville, tomorrow evening. Many added attractions will be offered. The hall has been prettily decorated for the occasion. An orchestra from Kingston will furnish music as usual.

Battery E Drills Tonight.

Battery E, 152nd Ammunition Train, will drill this evening at the state armory. The change in the drill night affects this week only and commencing next week the drills will be held on Monday as usual.

Troopers at State Fair.

Sergeant James Cunningham, who is in charge of the state troopers in Ulster county, with his men, will be at Syracuse during the state fair, Corporal Lounsbery remaining in charge.

LAST OFFER TO MINE FACTIONS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 4.—The warring anthracite operators and miners have received the "best possible offer" upon which settlement of the hard coal strike may be based, it was learned at the state capital today.

While Governor Pinchot continued his absolute silence, it became known that no further proposal, offering any additional benefit to either side, is to be presented when the two factions meet again with the governor tomorrow.

KENNEDY AND HOWARD HURT

When Howard's Car Crashed Into a Pole Alongside the Road Monday Evening While Driving Into Kingston—Neither Seriously Hurt.

Attorney Robert J. Howard, of the State Motor Vehicle Bureau, and Thomas J. Kennedy, former deputy collector of internal revenue, were injured Monday evening about 10:30 o'clock on the plank road when the auto driven by Mr. Howard left the road and struck a pole. The accident was said to be caused by Mr. Howard, who was driving, being blinded by the glare of the headlights of an approaching automobile.

Both men were rushed to the Kingston City Hospital where it was found that neither was seriously injured. Mr. Kennedy, who was badly cut about the face, left the institution the same evening after having his wounds dressed.

Mr. Howard, who was also badly cut about the face, is expected to be at the hospital for several days, but his condition is not serious, it was stated today.

Three Fail in Channel.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dover, England, Sept. 4.—Charles Toth of Boston and two French swimmers, Michel and Perrault, were brought to land today after making unsuccessful efforts to swim the English Channel last night. Perrault was badly burned on board a tug when gasoline with which he was being rubbed down, caught fire.

Auto Tipped Over.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Ward of High Falls were injured Monday afternoon when a shoe blew off on their Ford touring car, causing the machine to swerve from the road and upset. There were two other persons in the car also but they escaped uninjured. Dr. John F. Larkin of this city was called to High Falls and attended the injured couple.

Consulates Destroyed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 4.—An unconfirmed report was received today that the British and American consulates at Yokohama were destroyed. The fate of the consuls was not mentioned. A foreign office dispatch from Kobe made no mention of the destruction of the consulates.

Mrs. Hankins Would Serve Sentence For Her Drunken Son, She Tells The Court

He Promises To Abstain, After Frequently Facing Judge—She Pays His Fine.

Mother love for a wayward boy was brought to the attention of Judge Harry E. Schirick in police court this morning when Harry Hankins, a young man residing with his mother at Sleightsburgh, was arraigned on a charge of public intoxication. He had been arrested Saturday evening on Abeel street, and as soon as his mother heard of his arrest she had hurried to the county jail and deposited $10 cash bail for his release until the hearing today in police court.

This is the third or fourth time that Hankins has faced Judge Schirick and the court said that the proper place for Hankins would be jail.

"Let him go this time," pleaded Mrs. Hankins, with tears streaming down her face, "and the next time he is arrested send me to Albany in his place so that I won't have to come to police court again."

"If you have no shame for yourself," said Judge Schirick, turning to the son, "you should be ashamed to have your mother appear in court here and plead for you."

Judge Schirick imposed a fine of $10 which was paid by the mother, and before discharging Hankins asked him if he was willing to make a statement for the court records that he would not drink intoxicants for one year. Hankins said he would make such a statement, and did so.

"Remember," warned Judge Schirick "that the next time you appear before me I will first read this statement to you before passing sentence."

MEETING HERE ON WEDNESDAY TO EXPRESS SYMPATHY FOR THE JAPANESE

There will be a meeting at the court house Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of expressing sympathy with Japan in her recent affliction of earthquake, fire and flood. The meeting will be called to order by Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck. Addresses will be delivered by Poultney Bigelow, Admiral Higginson and others. The public is invited to attend this meeting.

QUARREL BEFORE LEAGUE TOMORROW

Mussolini Announces Italy Will Withdraw Before Submitting to League's Dictation on Question of Honor.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Geneva, Sept. 4.—The League of Nations assembly today decided to take up the Italian-Greek dispute tomorrow.

Despite the threatening attitude of Premier Mussolini, hope is maintained here that the troubles will be adjusted and that peace will be maintained in southern Europe and the Balkans.

Rome, Sept. 4.—"I deny absolutely the competency of the League of Nations to meddle in affairs touching Italy's national honor," said Premier Benito Mussolini today. "I might even go so far as to say Italy would withdraw from the League of Nations."

Public opinion and the press are backing up the premier's stand against League intervention.

Press censorship is holding up news of naval and military movements but it is reported from Venice that the Greek yacht Aello fled from port after being attacked by motor boats.

It is semi-officially announced that mines have been laid around Leros Island to prevent a Greek coup.

Announcement through semi-official channels claims that eight Greeks and two Armenians were killed during the Italian bombardment at Corfu "when they remained in the barracks on the invitation of Greek troops." The announcement claims further more that the British vice consul's report substantiates Italy's claim that the Italians were blameless.

REEDS SAYS ISOSTASY CAUSED GREAT QUAKE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 4.—A new earth force isostasy—may have caused the Japanese catastrophe, according to Dr. Reeds, acting director of the geological department of the American Museum of Natural History, and one of America's foremost authorities on earthquakes and their causes.

"It is comparatively recent discovery, and one not yet fully understood by geologists," he said today. "When they have completed their examinations of that force, or principle, the term designating it probably will become as familiar to school children as gravity.

"If gravity is truly the greatest of earth forces, isostasy is its smaller but tremendously powerful brother. And, as is the way with smaller brothers, isostasy calls on and receives help from gravity when ever it needs it."

Japan's earthquake troubles have been due to isostasy, Dr. Reeds declared. At the rate isostasy is working that country may not find relief from earthquakes for thousands, perhaps millions of years, he believes.

BATTERY E INDOOR BASEBALL TONIGHT.

The Battery E indoor baseball league will resume action again this evening when Sergeant Cunningham's Cock and Aim nine meet for the first time Corporal Long's Trigger Squeeze quintet at the state armory. It has leaked out that the sergeant will probably use Mooney on the mound, while Corporal Long has refused to tell anybody who he intends using in tonight's contest.

Dirigible Flight Postponed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 4.—Because of unfavorable weather, officials at the naval air station here this morning postponed the maiden flight of the Z. R. 1 the world's largest rigid dirigible, until after 3 o'clock this afternoon, instead of 1 o'clock as planned. The Z. R. 1 will be commanded by Capt. Frank R. McCrary, commander of the naval air station. The dirigible is to remain in the air about two hours.

East Kingston Hill Re-graded.

The re-grading of the East Kingston hill from the state highway to Frederick Perry's store has been completed by John Halliwick, the highway superintendent, and is considered a fine piece of road work. Mrs. Halliwick and Fred Perry, in a Ford, were the first to ride over the improved hill and they and others who tested out the road pronounced it as being equal to the Ashokan boulevard.

Boy Scouts' Field Day.

Troops of Boy Scouts from all parts of Ulster county attended a field day at Saugerties Labor Day. The boys enjoyed many games and races. They also enjoyed the hospitality of the people of Saugerties. There were also exhibition drills.

An Auto Collision.

Werblowsky of Buffalo reported to the police Monday that his car had been struck by a car driven by J. Mc Laughlin of Albany but not much damage was done.

Latest News Discloses Humanity's Worst Calamity

Tokio's Property Damage Is Placed at Five Billion Dollars—Hunger, Ruins and Piles of Corpses Drive Survivors to Distraction—Relief Work Well Under Way.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tomioka, Japan, Sept. 4. (Via Radio to San Francisco)—Five hundred thousand casualties is the latest estimate of the toll taken by the earthquake, fire, tidal wave and typhoon disaster which engulfed Japan last Saturday morning.

This report reached here today by courier from Oyma and is based on an announcement made by the metropolitan police of Tokio.

The report adds that more than 300,000 houses were burned.

The bureau of relief estimated today that the houses destroyed will total 400,000. The same source of information estimated the dead at 130,000.

Five billion dollars property damage has been done in Tokio, according to revised estimates reaching here.

Tomioka, Japan, Sept. 4. (Via Radio Corporation of America to San Francisco.)—The Japanese horror continues unabated. Death and destruction increases hourly as an agonized nation is reduced to a state of appalling helplessness.

Half a million casualties is the fearful toll of the disaster to date, according to estimates made today by the Metropolitan police of Tokio.

Three hundred thousand houses are reported destroyed in Tokio alone while hundreds of thousands of buildings are smouldering in the charred ruins in Yokohama.

The gaunt spectre of famine is casting its sinister shadow over the stricken empire as thousands of hungry and homeless refugees battle with police and soldiery in desperate efforts to obtain food. Scores of half starved victims of the disaster have been killed and injured in these riots.

In Tokio alone the number of dead is estimated to be in excess of 150,000, while the devastated port of Yokohama reports 100,000 deaths among the victims of the combined earthquake, fire, tidal wave and typhoon tragedy.

Tokio reports reaching here early today are to the effect that the half ruined imperial palace, which was thrown open to refugees yesterday, is being closely guarded by one regiment of infantry and one battalion of engineers of the Imperial Guard Division.

From seven to eight hundred patients perished in the University Hospital at Tokio when that building collapsed and was consumed in the subsequent outbreak of fire.

Both Tokio and Yokohama continue to burn fiercely. A number of large oil tanks in Yokohama exploded with appalling consequences when reached by the flames.

The fiery blast in Tokio, fanned by a strong wind, continues spreading terror and devastation throughout the capital. Tons of dynamite are being used by troops in frenzied attempts to stop the whirlwind of flames.

Two new earthquakes in Tokio late today added to the horror and desolation. Hundreds of lives were lost, while four hundred additional houses were razed. Thousands upon thousands of bodies are being piled in huge funeral pyres and cremated in order to prevent an outbreak of pestilence.

Property loss throughout the terror zone will run into billions of dollars.

Japanese troops are being concentrated in Tokio and Yokohama from all parts of the empire to prevent a continuance of vandalism which has been rampant in the stricken cities. The strictest martial law prevails in both cities.

Relief work is being actively carried on. Hundreds of thousands of destitute refugees are lining up in front of relief stations for meagre food rations.

The Japanese government has commandeered all food, medical and building supplies and is conscripting thousands of coolies for rescue work under military supervision.

Rioguku, Azuma and Mumaya bridges, heavy traffic thoroughfares of Tokio, collapsed yesterday under the weight of thousands of fleeing refugees. Heavy loss of life resulted.

Among the cities and villages known to have been completely wiped out with fearful loss of life are:

Kamakura, Odawara, Hachioji, Chiba, Kawaguchi, Kofu, Gotemba, Koyama, Mishima, Atima, Ito, Yokosuka and Shimoda.

Hommoku and Isoko, summer resorts, and the island of Enoshima have been swept to their doom by a gigantic tidal wave. Thousands of lives were lost.

Bonin and Oshima Islands, off the Idzu Peninsula are reported to have disappeared.

The mountains of Kamonyama, Nogeyama and Iseiyama, on the Idzu Peninsula range, have crumbled as result of a terrific upheaval.

Trans-Pacific liners President Jefferson, of the United States shipping board fleet, and the Empress of Australia, of the Canadian Pacific line have not been heard from since disaster. Both vessels were in Yokohama Harbor at the height of the tidal wave and typhoon of last Saturday.

The steamer Korea Maru reported safe in Yokohama. Two thousand three hundred refugees are on board.

American warships of the Asiatic fleet under the command of Rear Admiral E. A. Anderson are rushing assistance and supplies to Japan from all points of the Far East. The United States war vessels will be placed at the disposal of the Japanese government for relief and police purposes.

The capitol of the Empire has been temporarily moved from Tokio to Osaka.

Shanghai, Sept. 4—The devastating fire that has been burning continuously since Saturday at Tokio, following the most pronounced earthquake ever experienced by Japan, has burned itself out. The conflagration has consumed all of the principal buildings and houses. The city is a heap of smouldering ruins.

Wireless messages brought this information to Shanghai today.

In Yokohama only two buildings remained which could be recognized. They are the Mitsui Bussanakaisha and the Yokohama Specie Bank.

The interior of both buildings was consumed by fire. Only the shells remain.

The bureau of relief estimated today that the houses destroyed in Yokohama total 400,000. The same source of information stated the casualties in that city were exceeding 130,000.

The estimate of casualties in Tokio was given by the bureau but the indication is that the total dead in the island empire will approximate half a million. Property damage in Tokio, the seat of the Japanese government prior to the catastrophe, was conservatively estimated at five hundred million yen.

Communication by telegraph with Tokio and Osaka was reported reestablished, but the trail channel is not dependable. The lines are clogged with official government messages. Private messages are not accepted.

In the capital city the Chinese legation was destroyed by fire. Official records are reported saved however.

Two million persons are homeless on the outskirts of Tokio. They are camping. All food has been destroyed and there is great suffering, particularly among the children. The military is in charge of the food rationing, but the force is inadequate to cope with the unprecedented situation.

So great was the extent of fire damage to the imperial palace that habitation was hazardous. Refugees, to whom the official residence of Prince Regent Hirohito was thrown open, abandoned the imposing structure. The opening or the White House of Japan violated all precedent. The prince and his official family were reported safe at Nitkko.

No information concerning the safety of the American diplomatic corps at the United States embassy has been received from Tokio. Apprehension is felt for the safety of the diplomatic corps.

The population of Nagoya was in excess of half a million, and was totally destroyed by fire.

Martial law is in strict enforcement in both Yokohama and Tokio. Numerous shootings for looting have been reported. The gendarmere were forced to use their swords frequently to preserve order when mobs raided food supply stations.

The government of Japan has been established temporarily at Osaka. Numerous valuable governmental manuscripts were destroyed in Tokio. American circles here this morning are apprehensive of the fate of Congressman Ackerman of New Jersey, who is known to have been visiting the stricken area. Professor Henry Fairchild Osborne, of the American Museum of Natural History of New York city, also was a tourist in the devastated district. Professor Osborne arrived in Tokio last Friday, the day preceding the disaster. No word has been received from either of the Americans.

The Eastern News Agency reported the dead in Tokio at 150,000.

The scarcity of food is feared to have resulted in consequent disease. To forestall any possibility of plague, Coat Dress in the New Design, With Skirt and Sleeves Illustrating the Latest Silhouette.

where a white flannel turn-over collar does everything there is in the way of trimming with the exception of a repetition of the same idea. Flannel, indeed, is an extremely smart late summer material. It is one of those things that, early in the season, is tested by a few, found wholly satisfactory, and then, in mid season, is developed to greater heights of accomplishment than had ever been conceived for it when the fabric first was launched upon the market.

Alpaca Has Gained Favor.

Alpaca is another of these new summer materials that has grown in favor through the hot months. It was launched in Paris in the spring, and the early reports from fall showings of Parisian dressmakers seem to show that the stuff has, if anything, gained in favor. At any rate, there seems not the slightest chance that it will fall away in the opinion of either the dressmaker or the one who wears and tests the garment.

The dresses of heavy, flat crepe are the ones that hold the attention of the shopper just now. They come in so well for just this between-season wear and they are bound to last through a whole winter and into the following spring, if they are happily and wisely chosen. The crepe is so soft and becoming in line that it will never cease to be a favorite with women who know how to dress really smartly and who know how to get the best effect out of the clothes they choose as their own. One crepe dress goes such a long way that it cannot be disregarded in the planning of a wardrobe, and usually there is no better time to invest in one than between summer and fall, when the designers' attention is just naturally given to this sort of thing.

Printed crepes, so say the cables from Paris, are to continue in favor with the couturiers over there. That is a signal, then, for us to go ahead and wear them with utter abandon, for they will be bound to last for several seasons more if they are well done and conform to the demands of the individual figure. One of these in a new design is in tones of tan and green, with spots of black scattered through the patterning. Then the plaited cape reaching over the shoulders is made of tan chiffon, with an edging of black ribbon to tie it in color to the gown's foundation print.

Hats, after all, are about the most important considerations of the moment. You can buy a new hat and make a whole costume which had been launched on the down-and-out path look like something fresh and new. A hat has subtle charms to change the appearance of a dress, and any woman who is essentially a good dresser and who knows clothes for what they are worth will never hesitate to put money into a hat at this time of the year.

You can find about town here and there, though you must shop about until you locate just the right thing, little hats that are copied from the French or made up in American design which have neither a fast and impregnable summer appearance nor one that is altogether winter in character.

Predecessors of the Pianoforte.

The pianoforte as it is today in its essential parts, i. e., in the organism which produces the sound, is very little different from (we may almost say perfectly similar to) the first instrument with hammers, invented by Bartolomeo Cristofori of Padua at the beginning of the Eighteenth century, writes Guido M. Gatti, in Musical News and Herald. The last two hundred years which saw such brilliant developments of mechanics have not produced anything more perfect and more efficient than that simple and genial combination of levers which did away entirely with the old system of Saltarelli (harpsichord jacks), and thenceforth reigned supreme.

Yellow and Sand Hat With Flower Trimming

The large hat for summer wear with flower trim, such as is here shown, is quite the rage. Made up of yellow and sand it is a marked favorite.

Late Fashion Notes for Women Who Care

It is only a short time since the scallop-shaped pearl bead made its appearance, and yet this odd ornament is seen today on every sort of gown. Row upon row of these lovely, lustrous beads are used for evening frocks and also to form deep borders on evening cloaks.

An unusual headdress meant to be worn at a summer evening dance is made up of Egyptian fans—of diminutive size—arranged like a crown. Each fan is beaded with colored stones and crystals.

A glance at any fashionable gathering today will prove the popularity of two types of hat. One is the close little poke bonnet, so vastly becoming to the right sort of profile and so ugly with the wrong sort of nose. The other is the wide hat with a semi-transparent brim.

Even when shoes are black today, they have fascinating insets of bright red and green. For dancing, the buckle has been somewhat edged out by the tiny circlet of stuffed flowers surrounding a center of stones. Black satin sandals with heels of bright hue have tassels to match the heels.

Plaids and wide stripes are used for travel coats.

Very long tassels of silk or jewels are frequently seen on the most expensive frocks. Sometimes the fringe of the tassel is long enough to reach from waistline to hemline.

With the return of the tailored suit is the return of the buttonhole bouquet of colorful French flowers and the corsage of violets or the single camelia. Any of these soften the severity of effect and add a subtle touch of femininity.

The sleeves in some of the newest wraps have a slightly lower armhole, dropped sufficiently to round the shoulder. There is a tendency toward more fullness at the top than at the bottom of the coat.

Chic Negligees Are of Chiffon and Lace

Chiffons and laces strike the keynote of midsummer negligees. The models are formal or informal, as the occasion may demand.

Little boudoir coats are made in two-toned chiffon effects and with wide lace flounces. One, for instance, is orchid down to the knees, where there are alternating bands of blue and lace flouncing. The laces used are striking for their fineness of design and richness of tone, almost all being a deep cream color.

The formal teagown is likewise an affair of chiffon and laces, the latter arranged in a deep V-shaped panel at the back, and making side draperies. A handsome ornament and tassel of beads is a distinctive feature. The coat all of lace is another midsummer number, and is shown in tinted laces, with a border of chiffon and a wide ribbon sash. It is designed to be worn over a slip, or over an elaborate nightrobe.

There is some batik-patterned silk used either as a border trimming, as in the case for a simple pajama, or on the garment itself. One little slipover of batik has white borders that tone down the effect somewhat, and has an interesting cape back that reaches below the waist at the back, and is carried around to the sides in jabot drapes. This sort of thing is used for informal wear at home, in the summer garden or on the summer porch.

Clever French Touch of Novelty.

Many of the smart dressmakers in Paris are introducing a new variation of the slip-over blouse and dress which eliminates the little slash down the back. They are introducing the slash on one or both shoulders, which are tied up with perky ribbon bows. This new treatment offers unlimited opportunities for introducing new fashion touches. The change from a tailored ribbon to a dressy ribbon rosette will transform the costume.

Colored Lace.

Colored laces for afternoon and evening dresses, come in every shade of blue, from sapphire to the most delicate tint, and in the popular beige and gray tones.

Antiquity of Glass.

The Egyptians are said to have been taught glass-making by Hermes. Glass houses were built in ancient Tyre and glass was used by the Romans in the time of Tiberius. Ruins in Pompeii show glazed windows.

THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT.

It is too much to hope for that those persons who believe their own fanatical prejudices to be the only true and unalterable law of God and man can be induced to stop talking and, for a few minutes, do some thinking. But the overwhelming majority of men and women are not blind fanatics and are capable of thinking, once they can be induced to make the effort. To the attention of these is called the Eighteenth Amendment, so often referred to and so seldom quoted, on which is based all of the prohibition legislation enacted by Congress. Any criticism of or proposal to amend or repeal the Volstead law is assailed by a small and noisy minority as "nullification of the consttitution," "defiance of law," etc. Few are prepared to either affirm or deny these statements, so they go unchallenged. Here is the Eighteenth Amendment. Read it carefully and then reflect on how it has been stretched into the Volstead Law and the recently repealed Mullan-Gage Law:

Manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors, for beverage purposes, prohibited.—1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to its jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Congress and the several states given concurrent power to pass appropriate legislation to enforce the article.—2. The Congress and the several states shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

The manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquor for use as a beverage is prohibited. That is all. There is no definition of what constitutes a beverage, no definition of what constitutes an intoxicating liquor, no restraint whatever on beverages not intoxicating, and no restraint on the manufacture, transportation or sale of intoxicants not for beverage purposes.

The Volstead Law does, and the Mullan-Gage Law did, claiming authority conferred in the second section of the amendment, inflict on the people a mass of oppressive injunctions and prohibitions that have nothing to do with the enforcement of either the spirit or the letter of the amendment, but provide an expensive and, thus far, ineffective machinery for the enforcement of laws that are not and cannot be enforced. Still, according to the mouthings of the radical prohibitionist minority, any protest, any amendment or repeal of these farcical laws is an attempt to "nullify" the constitution. Of some of the features of the Volstead Law The Freeman will have more to say in future.

The coming fashionable gown is described in Paris news as "a slender sheath or tube," without a girdle or anything else to indicate the waist line, "following an uninterrupted course from shoulder to just above the knee." Something of that description, though longer, has been in existence for years, but it has been worn only during the hours devoted to slumber.

Charles P. Steinmetz may be all that is said of him in the electrical world, or he may be just a legend, but his last prediction that it would not be long before a four-hour work day would be all that would be required was a shock, the reaction of which may be more definite to Mr. Steinmetz than anybody else. The people, unknowing as they may be about kilowatts and amperes, are not yet ready to concede that a period is approaching when we can all live without some effort, notwithstanding the progress of electricity, shaped, as it may be, by a Steinmetz. One effect when production is being urged may be that some, taking Mr. Steinmetz seriously, may decide to sit down and wait three or four hundred years for his four-hour day before they do anything.

The American Society of Teachers of Dancing have offered prizes for the invention of some kind of machinery that will keep couples at a perceptible distance from each other while on the floor. A French dancing master has already invented a belt with projecting metal spikes, but whether French youth can be induced to wear it is not reported. Our dancing masters are said to be looking for a sort of "armor to prevent adhesion" on the part of dancers, but if they find it as a result of the offered prizes, the question will remain as to whether American youths and maidens will consent to thus forcibly held apart.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. I have been told a porcupine has absolutely no power to shoot its quills. My whole family disputes this. Is it true?

2. Why doesn't it hurt a woodpecker's head to beat so violently into wood?

3. Can you give any advice how to photograph fancy aquarium fishes?

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. How old do fur seals live to be?

We can't make a reliable statement. 15 to 20 years for males and 9 to 10 for females is said to be the average for individuals that escape accident. We hardly see how it would be possible to get information on the seal's span of life unless some system of tagging such as is now attempted with birds and codfishes were tried.

2. Please tell what the birds were in the enclosed clipping from a newspaper?

We can't quote the clipping, but the bird described was unmistakably a cedar wax wing, with a black line through the eye and a head crest. The point emphasized was the fact they were pecking at fruit blossoms and making the trees rain petals. This is a common trick of cedar birds in early spring, and examination of stomachs of birds that had seemed to eat blossoms showed their real prey was tiny insects that infest the blossoms —not the blossom.

3. Is there any plant that keeps its same leaves all through its life?

Yes, a great botanic curiosity is seen in the African plant Welwitschia mirabilis. It has a woody trunk or stem with only two leaves, which grow out something like streamers, renewing themselves at their base or stem end, and dying at their outer end. As long as this plant lives, its 2 queer leaves keep growing.

FAT MEN HAVE ADVANTAGE

Under Certain Conditions They Are Able to Endure More Than Their Slimmer Comrades.

In the diligent research made into questions of temperature, and the effect of heat on the physical condition, by the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, in cooperation with the United States bureau of mines and the Carnegie Institute of Technology, it was discovered that fat men endure high temperatures and excessive humidity better than thin men, and, further, that the drinking of ice water when overheated does not necessarily have evil effects.

"It has frequently been stated," says the report, "that workers exposed to high temperatures developed severe cramps after drinking ice water. A few of the subjects of these experiments volunteered to drink ice water after about an hour's exposure to high temperature, and two of them, in one experiment, drank a quart of ice water in less than fifteen minutes without ill effects. Cramps did not develop in any of the subjects at any time."

On entering and leaving the specially heated chamber, the report shows loss of weight varied with the individual, the heavier and stouter man losing more than the light and thin one. Notwithstanding this, the lighter man, as a rule, could not endure the temperature conditions as long, and complained more of the exhaustion which followed.

SWEDEN SAVES HER FORESTS

Country Has Comprehensive System Which Has Materially Added to the National Wealth.

Reforestation has been carried on in Sweden as a general practice for so many years that there are no cut-over lands such as one sees in this section of the country, according to E. J. Hanzlik, local forest examiner in the United States forestry service, who recently returned from Sweden, where he studied for a year as a fellow of the American-Scandinavian foundation. "Sentiment is crystallized in Sweden so that forestry is an established thing," Mr. Hanzlik said.

Mr. Hanzlik is the first forestry representative of the Pacific coast who ever was sent abroad by the foundation. He attended the Swedish forestry institute in Stockholm and studied at the headquarters of the Swedish forest service and experiment station. The purpose of the fellowship is to assist in an exchange of ideals between countries.

Wages in Sweden are generally much lower than in Oregon, Mr. Hanzlik said. The average wage in Sweden is $1.50 and $2 for the man who is working in the woods or in the sawmills, he added.

Horsepower Machine.

Individuals who claim to feel as "strong as a horse" may now have the opportunity to put their strength to a test. A device known as the eurostometer, which gauges the strength of human beings in terms of horsepower, has been perfected. It consists of a bicycle transmission and a handwheel geared to a cylinder, which offers resistance to the motion of the transmission. The person being tested is required to maintain the velocity of the resisting cylinder at a predetermined number of revolutions per minute. When the machine is in motion a weight brake is gradually applied until the revolutions fall below a given standard. The weight registers upon a scale beam, on which the horsepower is the unit of measure.

Not a Silver Lining.

Just before the children, Mattie, Sadie, Sam and Lint, were to go away to school, their uncle, who was paying their tuition, called them to him. Visions of a bountiful allowance danced before the eyes of the young scholars, especially the boys.

They walked the hot and dusty mile, up hill, to their uncle's house. Dutifully they listened to a lecture of "do's" and "don'ts." Finally uncle reached into his "money" pocket.

He pulled out some stamps. To each child he gave enough stamps to last all term. The boys looked chagrined. The girls giggled at the boys. All thanked him and trudged the mile to their home.

Noteworthy Proverb.

The gown is his who wears it, and the world is his that enjoys it.

Guide Posts of Business

RIDING along an unfamiliar road, you depend upon sign posts to guide you. Whether you're hitting the thank-you-mams in a flivver or soaring along in a costly car, they do their work equally well.

To-day, as you spend your money to fill your needs, advertisements are waiting to direct you. They are the guide posts of business. They point the short, straight road to satisfaction in buying. They will serve you well, whether you spend much or little.

Do you stop to read the advertisements? They are published to tell you exactly where to go for what you want. They lead you to values of which you would never know were they not there to guide you.

And remember that advertising always points out goods of unquestioned value. When a store or manufacturing concern puts its name on goods and tells you about them, you may be sure that they are worth consideration. It does not pay to advertise unworthy merchandise.

Assurances have been given however, that the heavy construction work between Cincinnati and Knoxville on the eastern division and between Nashville and Chattanooga on the western division of the Dixie Highway will have advanced to such a point that travel can get through with some degree of comfort by late fall. Reports are also being secured from an actual survey as to conditions from St. Louis and western points through Nashville, and also through Greensboro, N. C., to Atlanta.

The difficulties which have been encountered heretofore near the Georgia-Florida line have been practically eliminated and unless very severe weather conditions are encountered the trip south from Macon to Florida points should offer no serious difficulty. The Florida bound tourist must not expect on any route to make the same time which can be made on the highways through the north and east, or to find smooth pavement all the way. Suggestions will be made by the A. A. A. as to feasible runs for each day on the trip south.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

REALIZE VALUE OF LEGION

Victims of Arkansas City (Kan.) Flood Appreciate Aid Rendered by Ex-Service Men.

Citizens of Arkansas City, Kan., realized the value of an active post of the American Legion during the recent flood disaster which destroyed many lives and caused millions of dollars in property damage to communities in southern Kansas.

With the town placed under what approximated martial law, members of the Shelton Beaty post of the Legion assumed a task that only men with military training could master. The duty was to act in conjunction with the city authorities to obtain obedience of laws formulated hurriedly for the benefit of the town and to guard the flooded area from the pillaging of unscrupulous persons who flocked to the stricken district to loot what the water had left.

An organization was formed in short order by the Legionnaires and a cordon of guards was thrown about the water front. Guard shifts were chosen from 125 volunteers, who performed this task for three nights until the flood abated. A battery of field artillery of the National Guard, called out with the start of the flood, was in the midst of a drive for recruits, and it was necessary for Legionnaires to fill the depleted ranks of the organization to save its members from the strain of night and day service.

The Legionnaires' members had underwritten in part a guarantee to a Chautauqua company before the disaster occurred. Communicating with Chautauqua officials they obtained release from their contract and an offer from the company to stage the program for the benefit of the flood relief fund.

Now the veterans propose to co-operate in plans to be formulated by civic organizations working toward repair of damage caused by the flood and for permanent relief to persons who lost their homes and property.

MEMORIAL TO ALL WAR DEAD

Structure in Oakland, Cal., Also to Contain Names of Heroes of Allied Nations.

A majestic memorial to the dead of the World war, destined eventually to contain the names of the war dead of every allied nation, has been erected in Oakland, Cal., as the personal contribution of Dr. Leroy F Herrick Already the names of 84,324 American heroes have been placed in the crypt, and records from other nations will be sealed in the vault as they are received.

The memorial has been erected in the Allied Memorial Center on the banks of Lake Merritt in Oakland. Doctor Herrick, who for the past 30 years has been a practicing physician in Oakland, paid the entire cost of the memorial, a structure of steel and stone, and will maintain it It has been his ambition since 1919 to erect such a memorial, and his unique plans for recognition of the heroism of the dead have won commendation.

Special ceremony has marked the placing of each list, participated in by the American Legion and other veterans' organizations. Doctor Herrick plans to mark each day made historical by World war events with some such ceremony.

He expects to receive the Canadian list next, which will be followed by the Australian and New Zealand rolls. Much delay is anticipated in obtaining the lists of the 1,500,000 war dead of France, and for the complete lists of England, Belgium and other allies.

The monument has portraits of Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson carved in the stone, and the whole is surmounted by an American eagle.

WINS COOLIE LABOR BATTLE

American Legion in Queens County, New York, Obtains Deportation of Imported Workmen.

The coolie labor question has always been considered as one affecting the Pacific coast alone. But this is not the case, according to recent newspaper accounts. Had it not been for a post of the American Legion, such cheap labor would be turning out goods in a Long Island (N. Y.) factory.

For a long time two hundred Chinese had been employed in certain factories in Long Island City, but the Legion in Queens county, headed by the Blissville post, brought pressure to bear on the federal authorities so that they swooped down on these factories, arrested the men, and placed them on Ellis Island, where they were later to be deported.

This action by government officials culminated a year's fight by the former service men, in the face of adverse circumstances. Newspaper columns were closed to this gross violation of the federal law, but the dauntless Legion men kept hammering away until their point was carried and the men were on their way out of the country.

Earth's Many Changes.

The great changes that the earth undergoes may be judged from the fact that four times since geological history began new generations of mountains have arisen in Europe, and there is no reason to suppose that there will not be another.

WORKER FOR LEGION BUDDIES

Robert G. Simmons, Nebraska Congressman, Has Done Much for Ex-Service Men.

Robert G. Simmons, congressman from Nebraska, is a democratic sort of a chap, and doesn't hesitate to tell about it. He keeps a Holstein cow, drives a popular touring car, and hobnobs with his neighbors, particularly those who are members of the American Legion in his home town, of Scotsbluff, Neb., where he has made his way up to the position he now holds.

Simmons was born in a sod house on a western Nebraska homestead, sixty miles from a railroad. His early life was like that of any youngster of the western country. He had to help earn his way by farm labor, janitor work, messenger duty and odd jobs. When he attended college at Hastings he mowed lawns, washed dishes and tended furnaces to pay his expenses

He entered the military service in 1917 at Fort Omaha, Neb., as a private first class, but when discharged in 1919, had been elevated to the rank of second lieutenant, air service Mr. Simmons is a lawyer, and was county attorney at the time of his enlistment.

He served one term as commander of the Nebraska department of the American Legion, during which time certain legislation favored by the Legion was successfully enacted He was active in securing the passage of a law establishing a $2,000,000 endowment fund, income from which is expended by the American Legion in the state for the benefit of needy ex-service men Interest in the affairs of the ex-service men of the nation is a deep concern of the Nebraska congressman and he expects to devote a great deal of time to the Legion's program for relief of disabled.

PLAN TO TEACH AMERICANISM

Illinois Legion Commander Arranges for Broad Campaign During School Vacation.

Every school child in Illinois will hear a weekly message of Americanism during the school year, according to announced plans of the Illinois department of the American Legion, in accepting an outline of work from Commander Charles W. Schick of that state.

Commander Schick plans that every Legion post in the state's 102 counties will assign certain members of the organization to speak in each schoolroom in the cities and each school in country districts every week during the school year, carrying a message of better citizenship to the youth of America

In this manner the Illinois Legion man believes that such careful training aiming toward a better understanding of rights and privileges of citizenship will result in rapid assimilation of aliens in the state as well as assisting in raising the standard of citizenship of those already in possession of these rights.

Co-operation by members of the Legion with churches and other agencies in preparing citizens for naturalization is included in Commander Schick's plans. Prospective citizens will receive thorough training in the requirements for naturalization, so that the applicant will be familiar with American history and institutions before the final papers are awarded. Because church life is closer to the home it is hoped that the Legion, working through the various denominations, may realize on this plan for citizenship.

El Paso to Welcome Veterans.

Legionnaires who travel to San Francisco for the annual convention of the American Legion, may pass through El Paso, Tex., where a reception awaits them The local Legion post started the idea, which was joined in by the El Paso Chamber of Commerce, army officials and railroads entering the city. A feature of the visit of each delegation will be a short trip into old Mexico, across the international bridge into Juarez. Automobiles will be furnished for this trip. The invitation holds good for either the coming or going trips of the Legion travelers, or both, according to the El Paso committee.

Only Auxiliary Baseball Team.

Members of the American Legion auxiliary in Stanton, Ia., are believed to have formed the only baseball team composed of woman relatives of former service men. A challenge to the team of any other unit has been made by the Stanton nine.

CONTROLS GREAT BIRD PRESERVES

McIlhenny Hires Private Wardens to Protect Wild Fowl.

100,000 ACRES UNDER GUARD

New Orleans.—Re-enforced by a staff of seven wardens in his own employ, by the moral support of the state of Louisiana, to which he only recently conveyed the Rockefeller, Sage and Rainey-McIlhenny game preserves, and by good sportsmen everywhere, Edward Avery McIlhenny is now undertaking a new stewardship in the interest of wild life protection.

Already an informal adviser and overseer for the state in connection with more than 500 square miles of territory, Mr. McIlhenny has taken control of some 100,000 acres of land in the heart of the Gulf coast game regions.

Mr. McIlhenny has for some time owned 78,000 acres of ground, and only a few days ago obtained 22,000 acres more in the wild fowl feeding grounds.

Safety for Birds.

With his acquisition of the ground the millions of duck, geese and other game birds which come from the north to feed here in winter are assured of permanent feeding grounds and permanent protection against unscrupulous hunters and commercial exploitation.

Mr. McIlhenny has announced no plans with regard to the tract he has acquired other than to say that game will be protected and safeguarded. With this 100,000 acres in hands friendly to wild life, game will be safeguarded in all the territory from the mouth of the Mississippi to Texas.

Seventy-five miles of coast line along the gulf will be protected, and the total area inland is approximately 700 square miles. This territory includes the Rockefeller foundation of 88,000 acres, the Rainey-McIlhenny and Louisiana state wild life refuges of 62,000 acres, the Sage foundation of 78,000 acres and the property now controlled by Mr. McIlhenny. The Gulf of Mexico is the south line and White lake and the Louisiana rice fields form the northern boundary. Needless to say this territory is a paradise for birds coming from as far north as the Arctic circle to feed for the winter—as well as for hunters, if they could get into the grounds and run wild.

Hires Own Wardens.

Sportsmen generally are familiar with Mr. McIlhenny's work in the direction of game conservation. Beginning several years ago, he devoted much time and money to acquiring ground for the game preserves. Besides giving land of his own, he obtained grants from others. He now has on his own territory a squad of seven wardens who patrol the district and see that the laws are obeyed. They are safeguarding not only the game bird feeding grounds, but the haunts of the innumerable deer and bear, to say nothing of the otter, mink, muskrats, squirrels, rabbits and other small game.

Like most of the ground in this region, Mr. McIlhenny's 100,000-acre tract is of extremely fertile soil and suited to many profitable crops. But he is developing it not with agriculture in mind. Instead he is organizing an interlocking system of canals, ponds and lakes.

GIRL STUDENTS EARN WAY

German University Girls Piece Out Scant Incomes by Strange Jobs.

Ringing church bells is the occupation a girl student in one of the German universities at Dresden has adopted as a means of piecing out her inadequate income. She also did factory work and mending until a gift from the students of Vassar college provided her with money enough to buy meal tickets for the students' mess. Now she is able to devote more time to her studies.

The students' messes give two hot meals a day at a cost in American money of 2 cents, but many of the woman students cannot afford even this small sum.

Many girls are trying to live on only one hot meal a day, and consequently the number forced to leave the universities and high schools because of illness is very large.

RECORDING SPEEDOMETERS USED ON CARS IN SWEDEN

New Law Compels the Use of Device Which Will Give Positive Evidence of Speed.

Unusual measures for preventing automobile accidents and an entirely original idea for keeping the speeding nuisance in check are features in the new motor traffic laws which have just been passed by the Swedish riksdag.

A striking paragraph in the new law is that which provides for the compulsory use of recording speedometers on all motor vehicles. Such a device not only indicates the number of miles the car has run, but also the rate of speed during any part of the run. Thus, on the one hand, the innocent driver who may be wrongly accused of exceeding speed limits has a mechanical record with which to prove his innocence, while officers of the law can use the automatic record as irrefutable evidence against the guilty speeder.

Up to the present no recording speedometer for automobiles has been perfected, but promising experiments with such an instrument are being conducted, and the new law provides that as soon as the mechanical problem has been solved the government has the power to require the use of recording speedometers.

Drivers' licenses, under the new Swedish law, shall be issued only to persons who can pass the eye and ear tests prescribed by doctors. Each application must also be accompanied by a testimonial signed by a local motor traffic inspector to the effect that the applicant is known to be of sober habits and of orderly conduct.

The new speed limits in Sweden for passenger cars are 22 miles an hour in the city and 28 miles an hour in the country.

THEY FEED HUBBY STEAKS

Butcher Shop Census Shows That's Favorite Buy With Gotham Housewives.

The New York meat council is seeking first-hand facts about the feeding of husbands. The council's agents visited 150 butcher shops and discovered that 38 per cent of the husband-feeding wives buy steaks for their providers.

Twenty-six per cent demand lamb chops for the husbandly appetite. Eighteen per cent buy pork chops. Eighteen per cent take home an armful of chopped meat (hamburger).

There is an economic side to the question that arouses comment. Steaks, demanded most, constitute less than a quarter of the entire beef carcass. Steaks sell for 52 and 58 cents a pound. Lamb chops are but a small fraction of the whole lamb and they are costly—42 cents a pound. Pork chops are less expensive and hamberger is cheapest.

LATIN "AS SHE IS SPOKE"

Guide Is Weak on Vocabulary, but Strong on Facts.

A guide at the state capitol, at Jefferson City, Mo., whose duty it is to escort sightseers through the new building, to show the points of beauty and explain the oil paintings, brought his party to rest a few days ago in the governor's reception room. One of the women wanted to know the price of the Persian rug on the floor. The guide had some figures handy; the women did not question his veracity.

But presently she spied the figure of the state seal, which looks down from almost every nook and corner of the building.

"What is that, 'Salus populi suprema lex esto?'" asked the woman, reading the motto on the seal.

"To tell the truth, lady," spoke the guide without a moment's hesitation, "those words are Greek, but in English they mean, 'The best men get the jobs.'"

LOW DRIVES KILL TWO BIRDS

British Golfers' Hard Hits Wing Larks in Flight.

Although birds have often been killed by driven golf balls, the experience of two players on the Thorpe Hall course, Essex, England, is probably unique, for each accounted for one bird in the same round.

Driving a long, low shot from the tenth tee, W. L. Wass saw his ball hit a titlark and cut it cleanly in two.

Ten minutes later Wass' partner, A. F. Hart, playing a mashie shot down the twelfth fairway, struck a singing lark in flight, killing it outright.

The birds are to be stuffed and set up in the club lounge—already the home of a partridge and a greenfinch killed some years ago by members in play.

TUMOR TAKEN FROM BRAIN

Second Operation of Kind in Surgical History Proves a Success.

For the second time in the history of medical science, a German surgeon has successfully operated for removal of tumor on the brain and cure of the rare attendant ailment, "Jackson epilepsy."

The operator was the famous Berlin surgeon, Professor Unger of the Virschow hospital, who was assisted by Professor Mendel, noted neurologist.

Unger cut into the left side of the skull and thence into the brain, removing the tumor as big as a man's fist, which rested almost at the base of the brain.

SPORTING EVENTS NO BONANZAS

Too Many and the Admissions Cost Too Much, Says Walsh, Who Cites Variety of Proof.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 4.—If they speak from the heart and not from the wallet pocket, men prominent in sport promotion can do no other than admit that the big money of the post-war period is slowly but inevitably drifting elsewhere. The paid admissions at nearly every sport event have dwindled at an alarming rate during the present year and for reasons obvious and compelling, to wit:

1. Lack of ready money.
2. Lack of interest.

It is a lack of money plus an overdose of exploitation that has caused followers of boxing to greet all box office men with a touch of austerity. Formerly almost any kind of an attraction would produce a capacity house at something above popular prices.

Today, championship fights, notably those involving Criqui and Kilbane, Wilde and Villa, Dempsey and Gibbons and Wilson and Greb, play to meagre attendances. Too many fights and too little money is the answer.

Insistent ballyhooing summoned the innocents in great numbers to see Leonard and Tendler and Firpo and Willard. It will do the same thing for Dempsey and Firpo, ten days hence, but there must be an end to everything and we are disposed to believe that Dempsey and Firpo will supply it.

In baseball, lack of adequate competition is the answer. The Yankees are cake-walking in the American League, and in consequence, local interest is dying a belated death. The west seems to be more concerned with the Yanks than New York itself. As for the Giants, their average attendance at the Polo Grounds is distinctly sub-normal. New York is dead against another all-Manhattan world's series and the turnstiles are paying the penalty.

Race track crowds are not what they were for the simple reason that one must have money to sustain one's active interest in racing and many of the camp followers are a short jump ahead of their next meal.

FIRPO TO TAKE UP TRAINING IN SECRET

Dempsey so Fit He Wants to Take Time Off.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 4.—Luis Angel Firpo will do most of his training for the Dempsey bout in secret hereafter. He plans to go through several hours hard work every day from now on in the garage back of his quarters.

When the Argentine left his quarters today, he planned to do about eight miles of fast road work, followed by gymnasium grind and his bouts with the sparring partners.

Several new sparring partners will join the camp during the week.

White Sulphur Springs, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Jack Dempsey considers that he is in such fine condition for his coming bout with Luis Angel Firpo that a day of rest would do him no harm. He begged his manager, Jack Kearns, to allow him to remain idle today. Kearns declined to give a decision until noon.

"I have not felt quite so fit and ready to fight in four years," Dempsey said. "I'll be in condition when I climb into the ring with Firpo, as good as I was when I met Willard in Toledo."

COLONIALS DROP TWO GAMES TO D. & H. GENERALS ON LABOR DAY

Coutant Holds Visitors Hitless For Six Innings But After Generals Tie Score Culloton Relieves Him and is Found for Five Hits and Four Runs—Colonials Rally But Fall One Run Short—Dietz Pounded Hard in Second Contest—Scores 7-6; 6-2.

The Colonials allowed the Delaware & Hudson Generals to get the edge in the series between the two clubs on Labor Day afternoon when they dropped both ends of a double header at the Fair Grounds. The Generals won the first game by a 7-6 score and the second contest by a 6-2 score.

The first game was a thriller from start to finish and although the Colonials staged a ninth inning rally which netted them three runs they fell just one run short of tieing up the score. The second contest was not a very exciting one and the team from Watervliet clearly had the edge throughout the game.

The First Game.

Due to the fact that none of the pitchers which the Colonial management had hired had arrived up to the time the first game was scheduled to start in the afternoon, Pat Coutant was called upon to go in the box once more after pitching winning ball on both Friday and Sunday. For six innings the D. & H. players couldn't get anything which even resembled a hit and up to the seventh inning just one man saw first base. The best that they could do with Pat's offerings was to pop fly them in the air. However, in the seventh inning a walk and two hits, coupled with an error, gave the Generals three runs which tied the score

In the eighth inning Coach Schirick sent Bud Culloton in to finish the game. For some reason or other Bud seemed to be easy for the visitors for they proceeded to find him for five hits and four runs, which gave them a four run lead

Freddie Rossback was in the box for the Generals and although he was found for thirteen hits, with the exception of one or two innings, he managed to keep them fairly well scattered.

Schwab Hits a Homer.

The only home run wallop in the first game was the one made by Billy Schwab. Billy's clout came in the sixth inning with Coyle on the bags Furthermore, Bill got three hits out of five times at bat in this game

Freddie Dahn and Jack Robins also had a good time at the bat in the first game. Fred got three hits out of five times up and Jack managed to pull through with two clouts out of three times to bat.

Generals Knock Two Baggers.

When the Generals started to hit Bud in the eighth they seemed to be endeavoring to make up for all the innings that Pat had not allowed them to hit. Three of the five hits in that disastrous inning were two base clouts. Phelps, Joe Sandy, and John Sandy were the three men who came through with the extra base blows Then in the seventh inning Kelly Herbst also came through with a two bagger Outside of Schwab's home run the Colonials did not get an extra base drive throughout the entire game.

How They Scored Them.

The Colonials scored one run in the first inning. Fogarty reached first on an error by Delaney, the visitors' shortstop. McCue came through with a single which scored Fogarty. Dahn also hit safely in this inning but was left stranded on the bases

After the first inning the Colonials were held scoreless until the sixth when Schwab's homer with Coyle on the bags gave them two more runs

In the seventh inning the Generals started in. Joe Sandy received Pat a first base on balls, Hickey singled, and then Herbst doubled scoring Sandy. Schemerhorn flied out to the shortstop, Sandy went out by the Deegan-Coyle route but Hickey scored on the play. Then Delaney got on first and Herbst scored on Deegan's error. O'Neil ended the inning by going out, Deegan to Coyle

Five hits, three of which were two base blows, gave the Generals four runs in the eighth inning.

In the ninth the Colonials with the aid of four clean hits and an error on the part of the short stop pushed three runs over the rubber and tried their best to push the tieing one over It was not to be so.

The Second Game.

The second game was more or less of a walk away for the Generals. Dietz was on the mound for the Colonials and was hit hard throughout the game During the seven innings that he was in the box he was found for nine safe blows and six runs. Forsythe relieved him in the eighth and all the Rube allowed the visitors was one scratch hit and no runs.

A Freak Home Run.

One of the freakiest home runs that has been made on the local grounds was made by Joe Sandy in the third inning. Joe hit to left field and the ball seemingly rolled through a hole in the bottom of the fence Dahn put on his specs and tried as hard as he could to discover the sphere but it was all in vain. Just then Red Fogarty with his eagle eye discovered the said sphere and he proceeded to throw it to Catcher Robins but it was too late, Sandy had already reached home

Herbst Hits a Homer.

Immediately after this home run Kelly Herbst knocked another one which was not a freak This one dropped just about ten feet over the right field fence. There was no one on the bags at the time.

How They Came In.

Four hits, one a two base blow, gave the Generals two runs in the first inning. Joe Sandy, Herbst, Schemerhorn and John Sandy were the men who came through with the clouts.

Then in the third inning the two home runs which were described above gave the Generals two more tallies.

A walk, a sacrifice, and a hit gave the visitors one more run in the fourth inning.

A walk, a hit, and a passed ball gave the railroad men their last tally in the sixth inning.

The Colonials scored their first run in the sixth inning. A walk, hit and a fielders choice did the trick.

The Colonials last run was scored in the seventh and it came as the result of two hits and an error.

Diamond Chips.

Monday was just about the most disastrous day that the Colonials have had this season

Well you can't win games all the time and furthermore you can't win games without good pitching.

Pat Coutant is certainly there. Here's hoping that all of the hurling which he has done during the past few days won't injure his arm

Holding a club like the Generals hitless for six innings is rather a remarkable achievement considering the fact that only the day before he had shut out the strong Ossining team and that on Friday he had won his game with the Peekskill A C

Rube Forsythe showed in the two innings that he worked Monday that he is still there also From the looks of things Rube is going to get a stab at the Phillies tomorrow.

Well, dropping those two games may give the local club just enough punch to come back on Wednesday and hand Arthur Fletcher's crew a trimming.

Kelly Herbst knocked a home run Monday playing against us. We hope that he will knock another one playing with us on Wednesday.

Some of Kelly's team mates on the Generals stated Monday that they didn't doubt but that Kelly would make Cy Williams look like a bush leaguer No, they weren't sarcastic

It is quite a while since Schwab came through with a homer. Good work Bill.

Matty Deegan's foot is still in bad shape and it is a question as to whether he will be able to be in the game on Wednesday

Well let's forget those two trimmings for the time being at least and hand the Phillies a good trimming tomorrow. What?

LEONARD AND DUNDEE READY FOR WEDNESDAY.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Sept 4.—Beyond a short run a five mile walk and some light work with the weights, Benny Leonard will take a complete rest upon his arrival here today for his fifteen round championship bout with Johnny Dundee at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night

Dundee is expected to put in one more day of active training at his West Orange camp and then break for New York to rest until summoned by the bell.

To Waterproof Cloth.

Disolve one ounce of sugar of lead in a quart of water. Mix well. Put the liquid in a covered jar. When immersed in this solution, mattress pads, baby bibs, dress shields and lightweight coats can be made waterproof. Cloth for tents and covers may be made waterproof by the use of a larger quantity of solution.

Golf Club Is Oldest

America's oldest golf club will celebrate its thirty-fifth birthday, next November

The club is the St. Andrews, a few miles above Yonkers, N. Y., where a six-hole course was opened away back in 1897.

The first club house was a table which sat at the first tee and the furnishings comprised two tubs of ice water. Later on a tent was used.

Nowadays no club is satisfied unless it has spacious lawns, a big veranda, luxurious furnishing and a couple of professionals hanging around. It is safe to say that the initiation fee was less then than it is now.

SLICING BIG FAULT MANY FAIL TO MEND

Trouble Arises From Several Different Causes.

Slicing is the bane of golfing existence for thousands upon thousands of golfers.

It is really surprising how large a percentage never overcome the fault. The harder they try, the worse many of them get.

The fault arises from several different causes Probably in the majority of instances it is caused from the habit of pulling in the arms just as the ball is struck. This, in turn, is due to the fact that so many golfers are leaning backward as they complete their stroke

Nine times out of 10 the reason is that they are not well balanced at any stage of the stroke The chances are that they are standing with legs too stiff at the start of the swing so that when they try to pivot they merely straighten out the left leg and almost pull it off the ground in their endeavor to get the body around

This, in itself, is enough to almost throw them completely off balance, the body can't get much of a turn, and practically all the weight remains on the right leg from start to finish of the stroke

Then as a rule the right arm goes out from the body and they bring it in as it comes down on the ball. This means coming across the ball from right to left and imparting a spin which sends the ball to the right

That left leg must not be stiff and straight on the backswing

STUDEBAKERS BEAT SAUGERTIES SUNDAY 3 TO 1

Manager McNally's Studebaker team won a hard fought game on Sunday defeating the Saugerties Eagles in a 12 inning contest 3 to 1 The Saugerties team scored a run in the first inning and the Studebaker outfit tied it in the fourth The game was deadlocked then until the thirteenth inning, when by clean hits the Studebaker squad drove in two runs. Dietz and Fralman were the pitchers and it is needless to say that they were in exceptionally good form.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE PEEVED MONKEY

"Now perhaps I shouldn't say it as I suppose it is slangy and not the best word of all to choose and yet it is the only word which describes how I feel," said Larry the monkey.

"You haven't used the word as yet," said another monkey whose name was Snookums.

"I will tell you," said Larry. "The word I want to use is 'peeved.'

"It is the word which describes just how I feel."

"I don't believe I know what peeved means," said Snookums.

"You know when a person is angry and a bit mad at some one and just feels like a cat when he has his back up—"

But Snookums interrupted Larry.

"How do I know what a cat feels like when he has his back up? I'm not a cat. I haven't a cat's feelings."

"Oh, well," said Larry, "you know what I mean"

"Yes," said Snookums, "I understand."

"Now that you know what the word means and now that you understand it," began Larry, but once more Snookums interrupted him by saying:

"So peeved means all of that you were telling me a moment or so ago?

"I interrupted you and you didn't get a chance to tell me peeved really meant that. Nor did you get a chance to tell me that all those things meant peeved. It was my fault. But now I know.

"And though I've never known the word before, I have seen people when they were peeved. I know that.

"Yes, it is a word which does just seem to describe certain feelings."

"It does," said Larry. "And it does its work well in being a word full of meaning. Perhaps I'm not really fair enough to the word. It's a good dictionary word, too, and when a creature is peevish the dictionary says that person is fretful.

"Isn't it a descriptive word now, Snookums? Doesn't it just describe certain people and certain moods and the way almost every one, once in a great while at any rate, feels? Why you take right hold of it yourself."

"That's so," agreed Snookums. "But if it is a good dictionary word and it works so well why do you say it is slangy and that perhaps you shouldn't use it?"

"Well," said Larry, "of course I use slang when I'm playing, but when I'm trying to tell a story I try to use my best words and slang words are second best words, or play words. I don't use slang very often because very little of it expresses what I feel.

"Most of it is somewhat stupid, but the word peevish always sounds nice and slangy. It sounds like a slang word with some sense, perhaps because it isn't a slang word after all."

"And I haven't yet heard why you were peevish," said Snookums, "or why you are peevish."

"Our master," said Larry, "is what is known as a scientist. He is also known as a naturalist. That means that he knows all about natural history and animals and plants and science and in short that he is a very wise man.

"He has studied monkeys until he has become an authority on monkeys which means that he knows all about us. People who are interested in us are fascinated to hear him talk. People grow to know us well through him.

"Well, the other night he went to a dinner—it was a dinner of some of his old-time school friends. Many of them he hadn't seen for years. And his feelings were dreadfully hurt and he was angry and he felt insulted.

"It seems that all the men began to talk about what they were doing. Some were bankers, some were railway men, some were salesmen, some were in wholesale houses.

"And when they asked our master what he did and he said he was in the monkey business they all burst out laughing.

"'The monkey business,' they tittered.

"Now wasn't that ignorance? They looked down upon our master, and what had they done with their lives? Why, there's no science to selling a pair of pants or in handing a person money in return for a check through the paying teller's window of a bank, but to know about monkeys—well, that is something like."

"Something like," agreed Snookums, "and I don't wonder you're peeved that such a thing should have happened and that there should be such ignorance."

SUMMER DISHES

Vegetables which are intended to be served as hot dishes, with a few changes are especially good eaten cold

Cucumbers a la Poulette. — Pare and cut into cubes, rejecting the seeds, two medium-sized cucumbers. Boil the pulp in salted water until very tender but unbroken. Drain and cool. Make one cupful of rich white sauce, seasoning it with one-half teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper, mace or nutmeg and a little onion juice. Pour the sauce over the cucumbers, adding some strips of canned or fresh red pepper, and stir in one well-beaten egg. Pour the mixture into small greased molds or custard cups, place in a pan of water and bake for twenty minutes. Cover the tops of the molds with heavy paper while baking. Chill and serve.

String Beans With Sour Dressing.—String a quart of beans, cut them in halves crosswise, then slit them once lengthwise. Cook in boiling salted water till tender. Drain, rinse in cold water and chill. Shred a canned pimento and mix with the beans, then add one-half cupful of cream beaten with two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Serve with slices of corned beef or ham.

Tomato Baskets With Asparagus.—Chill, scald and skin even-sized tomatoes, scoop out the centers, leaving the scarlet cups to be filled later. Turn them upside down and set on ice. Select a bunch of fresh asparagus or its equivalent when cooked, chill the points and dress with chantilly sauce. Arrange them in the tomato baskets which have been brushed inside with the sauce. Make handles of green pepper cut into strips or slender stalks of celery, the ends tucked down well into the tomato.

Chantilly Sauce.—Add one or two tablespoonfuls of horseradish to a mayonnaise or boiled dressing and add to the tomato pulp which has been taken from the baskets, put through a sieve and cooked. To this add a half teaspoonful of grated onion, using one-half cupful of mayonnaise to this amount of seasoning.

NOTICE OF BOND SALE.

Notice is Hereby Given, that the undersigned, Supervisor of the Town of Woodstock, in the County of Ulster, in the State of New York, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Kingston, in said County, on the 8th day of September, 1923, at 11:00 o'clock a. m., twenty (20) bonds of the Town of Woodstock, of the par value of one thousand dollars ($1,000) each, payable two (2) on the first day of March of each of the years of 1924 to 1933, both inclusive, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5%) per annum, payable annually on the 1st day of March of each and every year.

Said bonds are issued pursuant to Sections 97 and 98 of the Highway Law and Sections 12, 13 and 14 of the County Law and Sections 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 of the General Municipal Law, and pursuant to an act of the Board of Supervisors of Ulster County passed on the 1st day of August, 1923.

Said bonds are issued for the purpose of paying for the cost of construction of three bridges in said town.

Said bonds cannot be sold for less than par value.

Terms of sale may be obtained by applying to John W. Eckert, County Attorney, Ulster County Savings Bank Building, Kingston, New York.

Written proposals may be submitted in accordance with the terms of sale.

The bids for the bonds will be received in lump sum only and not on a percentage basis.

The bonds will be first offered separately and then in block.

In event the aggregate of the bids for the separate bonds exceeds the highest block bid, the bonds will be struck down to the highest bidder for the individual bonds, but in event the highest bids for the bonds in block equals or exceeds the aggregate of the amount of the bids for the single bonds, the bonds will be struck off to the block bidder.

No bid shall be binding upon the town until the bonds have been offered both ways and actually struck off to the purchaser.

The bonds will bear date September 8th, 1923.

The town will not be liable to the purchaser or any other person for any allowance for attorney's fees in relation to said bonds or for investigating the validity thereof.

Dated, August 29th, 1923.

NOTICE OF BOND SALE.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Supervisor of the Town of Woodstock, in the County of Ulster, in the State of New York, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Kingston, in said County, on the 8th day of September, 1923, at 11:00 o'clock a. m., twenty (20) bonds of the Town of Woodstock, of the par value of one thousand dollars ($1,000) each, payable two (2) on the first day of March of each of the years of 1924 to 1933, both inclusive, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5%) per annum, payable annually on the 1st day of March of each and every year.

Said bonds are issued pursuant to Sections 97 and 98 of the Highway Law and Sections 12, 13 and 14 of the County Law and Sections 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 of the General Municipal Law, and pursuant to an act of the Board of Supervisors of Ulster County passed on the 1st day of August, 1923.

Said bonds are issued for the purpose of paying for the cost of construction of three bridges in said town.

Said bonds cannot be sold for less than par value.

Terms of sale may be obtained by applying to John W. Eckert, County Attorney, Ulster County Savings Bank Building, Kingston, New York.

Written proposals may be submitted in accordance with the terms of sale.

The bids for the bonds will be received in lump sum only and not on a percentage basis.

The bonds will be first offered separately and then in block.

In event the aggregate of the bids for the separate bonds exceeds the highest block bid, the bonds will be struck down to the highest bidder for the individual bonds, but in event the highest bids for the bonds in block equals or exceeds the aggregate of the amount of the bids for the single bonds, the bonds will be struck off to the block bidder.

No bid shall be binding upon the town until the bonds have been offered both ways and actually struck off to the purchaser.

The bonds will bear date September 8th, 1923.

The town will not be liable to the purchaser or any other person for any allowance for attorney's fees in relation to said bonds or for investigating the validity thereof.

Dated, August 29th, 1923.

The BROWN MOUSE

By HERBERT QUICK

(Copyright by The Bobbs-Merrill Company)

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Jennie Woodruff contemptuously refuses to marry Jim Irwin, young farm hand, because of his financial condition and poor prospects. He is intellectually above his station, and has advanced ideas concerning the possibilities of expert school teaching, for which he is ridiculed by many.

CHAPTER II.—More as a joke than otherwise Jim is selected as teacher of the Woodruff district school

CHAPTER III.—Jim, in his new position sets out to make stanch friends of his pupils, especially two boys, Newton Bronson and "Buddy" Simms, the latter the son of a shiftless farmer. Colonel Woodruff, Jennie's father, has little faith in Jim's ideas of improving rural educational methods. He nicknames him the "Brown Mouse," in illustration of an anecdote.

CHAPTER IV.—Jim's conduct of the school, where he endeavors to teach the children the wonders of nature and some of the scientific methods of farming, as well as "book learning," is condemned.

CHAPTER V.—Jennie Woodruff is nominted for the position of county superintendent of schools. The school board grows bitter in its opposition to Jim and his innovations.

CHAPTER VI.—At a public meeting Jim roundly condemns the methods of teaching in the rural schools, and makes no friends thereby.

CHAPTER VII.—A delegation of prominent women condemn Jim's methods of teaching, but he is stoutly defended by his pupils, especially Newton Bronson.

CHAPTER VIII.—Jim has Christmas dinner at Colonel Woodruff's, and listening to him, Jennie begins to do some thinking concerning his ability and his prospects.

CHAPTER IX.—In the evening Jim, as well as he knows how, courts Jennie, without, however, making much progress, though she is quickly losing her poor opinion of him.

CHAPTER X.—Jennie, elected county superintendent of schools, receives so many complaints from people of the district concerning Jim's methods of teaching that she finds herself compelled formally to ask for his resignation. After she has left, Jim is visited by Colonel Woodruff, who strongly urges him to refuse to resign, and offers to back him. Jim agrees to stick, for a while at least.

CHAPTER XI.—A meeting of the school board, which had been gathered to "get" Jim, is confronted by Jennie, who upholds him. He conducts an examination of his pupils at the meeting, to prove that he is not neglecting their "book learning" by the introduction of other subjects which he considers of importance. The splendid showing made by the children converts many, who had doubted, to his views.

CHAPTER XII.—The novel ideas which Jim has introduced have been talked about outside the county, and he is visited by Professor Withers, extension lecturer at the state university, who invites him to deliver an address at the next annual meeting of the Farmers' institute.

CHAPTER XIII.—Professor Withers is impressed by many of the innovations made by Irwin and so informs Colonel Woodruff and Jennie, somewhat to the astonishment of both. The colonel suggests to Jim that he (the colonel) seek election to the school board, replacing Cornelius Bonner, implacable enemy of Jim Irwin.

CHAPTER XIV

A Minor Casts Half a Vote.

March came in like neither a lion nor a lamb, but was scarcely a week old before the wild ducks had begun to score the sky above Bronson's slew looking for open water and badly-harvested cornfields. Wild geese, too, honked from on high as if in wonder that these great prairies on which their forefathers had been wont fearlessly to alight had been changed into a disgusting expanse of farms. Colonel Woodruff's hired man, Pete, stopped Newton Bronson and Raymond Simms as they tramped across the colonel's pasture, gun in hand, trying to make themselves believe that the shooting was good.

"This ain't no country to hunt in," said he. "Did either of you fellows ever have any real duck-shooting?"

"The mountings," said Raymond, "air poor places for ducks."

"Not big enough water," suggested Pete. "Some wood-ducks, I suppose?"

"Along the creeks and rivers, yes, sch," said Raymond, "but nothing to depend on."

"I've never been nowhere," said Newton, "except once to Minnesota—and—and that wasn't in the shooting season."

A year ago Newton would have boasted of having "bummed" his way to Faribault. His hesitant speech was a proof of the embarrassment his new respectability sometimes inflicted upon him.

"I used to shoot ducks for the market at Spirit Lake," said Pete. "I know Fred Gilbert just as well as I know you. But that's all over, now. You've got to go so fur now to get decent shooting where the farmers won't drive you off, that it costs nine dollars to send a postcard home."

"I think we'll have fine shooting on the slew in a few days," said Newton.

"Humph!" scoffed Pete. "I give you my word, if I hadn't promised the colonel I'd stay with him another year, I'd take a side-door Pullman for the Sand Hills of Nebraska or the Devil's lake country tomorrow—if I had a gun."

"If it wasn't for a pasel of things that keep me hyeh," said Raymond, "I'd like to go, too."

"The colonel," said Pete, "needs me. He needs me in the election tomorrow. What's the matter of your ol' man, Newt? What for does he vote for that Bonner, and throw down an old neighbor?"

"I can't do anything with him!" exclaimed Newton irritably, "He's all tangled up with Peterson and Bonner."

"Well," said Pete, "if he'd just stay at home it would help some. If he votes for Bonner, it'll be just about a stand-off."

"He never misses a vote!" said Newton despairingly.

"Can't you cripple him some way?" asked Pete jocularly. "Darned funny when a boy o' your age can't control his father's vote! So long!"

"I wish I could vote!" grumbled Newton. "I wish I could! We know a lot more about the school, and Jim Irwin bein' a good teacher than dad does—and we can't vote. Why can't folks vote when they are interested in an election, and know about the issues. It's tyranny that you and I can't vote."

"I reckon," said Raymond, the conservative, "that the old-time people that fixed it thataway knowed best."

"Rats!" sneered Newton, the iconoclast. "Why, Calista knows more about the election of school director than dad knows."

"That don't seem reasonable," protested Raymond. "She's prejudyced, I reckon, in favor of Mr. Jim Irwin."

"Well, dad's prejudiced against him—er, no, he hain't either. He likes Jim. He's just prejudiced against giving up his old notions. No, he hain't neither—I guess he's only prejudiced against seeming to give up some old notions he seemed to have once! And the kids in school would be prejudiced right, anyhow!"

"Paw says he'll be on hand prompt," said Raymond. "But he had to be p'swaded right much. Paw's proud—and he can't read."

"Sometimes I think the more people read the less sense they've got," said Newton. "I wish I could tie dad up! I wish I could get snakebit, and make him go for the doctor!"

The boys crossed the ridge to the wooded valley in which nestled the Simms cabin. They found Mrs. Simms greatly exercised in her mind because young McGeehee had been found playing with some blue vitriol used by Raymond in his school work on the treatment of seed potatoes for scab.

"His hands was all blue with it," said she. "Do you reckon, Mr. Newton, that it'll pizen him?"

"Did he swallow any of it?" asked Newton.

"Nah!" said McGeehee scornfully.

Newton reassured Mrs. Simms, and went away pensive. Jim Irwin's methods had already accomplished much in preparing Newton and Raymond for citizenship. He had shown them the fact that voting really has some relation to life. At present, however, the new wine in the old bottles was causing Newton to forget his filial duty, and his respect for his father. He wished he could lock him up in the barn so he couldn't go to the school election. He wished he could become ill—or poisoned with blue vitriol or something—so his father would be obliged to go for a doctor. He w'shed—well, why couldn't he get sick? Newton mended his pace, and looked happier.

"I'll fix him!" said he to himself.

"What time's the election, Ez?" asked Mrs. Bronson at breakfast.

"I'm goin' at four o'clock," said Ezra. "And I don't want to hear any more from any one"—looking at Newton—"about the election. It's none of the business of the women an' boys."

Newton took this reproof in an unexpectedly submissive spirit. In fact, he exhibited his very best side to the family that morning, like one going on a long journey, or about to be married off, or engaged in some deep dark plot.

"I s'pose you're off trampin' the slews at the sight of a flock of ducks four miles off as usual?" stated Mr. Bronson challengingly.

"I thought," said Newton, "that I'd get a lot of raisin bait ready for the pocket-gophers in the lower meadow. They'll be throwing up their mounds by the first of April."

"Not them," said Mr. Bronson, somewhat mollified, "not before May. Where'd you get the raisin idee?"

"We learned it in school," answered Newton. "Jim had me study a bulletin on the control and eradication of pocket-gophers. You use raisins with strychnine in 'em—and it tells how."

"Some fool notion, I s'pose," said Mr. Bronson, rising. "But go ahead if you're careful about handlin' the strychnine."

Newton spent the time from twelve-thirty to half after two in watching the clock; and twenty minutes to three found him in the woodshed, penknife in hand, a small vial of strychnine crystal before him, a saucer of raisins at his right hand, and another exactly like it, partially filled with gopher bait—raisins into which a minute crystal of strychnine had been inserted on the point of the knife.

At three-thirty Newton went into the house and lay down on the horsehair sofa, saying to his mother that he felt kind o' funny and thought he'd lie down a while. At three-forty he heard his father's voice in the kitchen and knew that his sire was preparing to start for the scene of battle.

A groan issued from Newton's lips—a gruesome groan. But his father's voice from the kitchen door betrayed no agitation. He was scolding the horses as they stood tied to the hitching-post, in tones that showed no knowledge of his son's distressed moans.

"What's the matter?"

It was Newton's little sister who asked the question. Even though regarded as a pure matter of make-believe, such sounds were terrible.

"Oh, sister, sister!" howled Newton, "run and tell 'em that brother's dying!"

Fanny disappeared in a manner which expressed her balanced feelings—she felt that her brother was making believe, but for all that, something awful was the matter. So she went rather slowly to the kitchen door, and casually remarked that Newton was dying on the sofa in the sitting-room.

"You little fraud!" said her father.

"Why, Fanny!" said her mother—and ran into the sitting-room—whence in a moment, with a cry that was almost a scream, she summoned her husband, who responded at the top of his speed.

Newton was groaning and in convulsions. Horrible grimaces contorted his face, his jaws were set, his arms and legs drawn up, and his muscles tense.

"What's the matter?" His father's voice was stern as well as full of anxiety. "What's the matter, boy?"

"Oh!" cried Newton. "Oh! Oh! Oh!"

"Newtie, Newtie!" cried his mother, "where are you in pain? Tell mother, Newtie!"

"Oh," groaned Newtie, relaxing, "I feel awful!"

"What you been eating?" interrogated his father.

"Nothing," replied Newton.

"I saw you eatin' dinner," said his father.

Again Newton was convulsed by strong spasms, and again his groans filled the hearts of his parents with terror.

"That's all I've eaten," said he when his spasms had passed, "except a few raisins. I was putting strychnine in 'em—"

"Oh, heavens!" cried his mother.

"Heavens! He's Poisoned!"

"He's poisoned! Drive for the doctor, Ezra! Drive!"

Mr. Bronson forgot all about the election—forgot everything save antidotes and speed. He leaped toward the door. As he passed out, he shouted, "Give him an emetic!" He tore the hitching straps from the posts, jumped into the buggy, gave the spirited horses their heads, and fled toward town. Just at the town limits, he met the doctor in Sheriff Dilly's automobile, the sheriff himself at the steering wheel. Mr. Bronson signaled them to stop, ignoring the fact that they were making similar signs to him.

"We're just starting for your place," said the doctor. "Your wife got me on the phone."

"Thank God!" replied Bronson. "Don't fool any time away on me. Drive!"

"Get in here, Ez," said the sheriff. "Doc knows how to drive, and I'll come on with your team. They need a slow drive to cool 'em off."

"Why didn't you phone me?" asked the doctor.

"Never thought of it," replied Bronson. "I hain't had the phone only a few years. Drive faster!"

"I want to get there, or I would," answered the doctor. "Don't worry. From what your wife told me over the phone I don't believe the boy's eaten any more strychnine than I have—and probably not so much."

"He was alive, then?"

"Alive and making an argument against taking the emetic," replied the doctor. "But I guess she got it down him."

Thus reassured, Mr. Bronson was calm, even if somewhat tragic in calmness, when he entered the death chamber with the doctor. Newton was sitting up, his eyes wet, and his face pale. His mother had won the argument, and Newton had lost his dinner. Huakon Peterson occupied an armchair.

"What's all this?" asked the doctor. "How are you feeling, Newt? Any pain?"

"I'm all right," said Newton. "Don't give me any more o' that nasty stuff!"

"No," said the doctor, "but if you don't tell me just what you've been eating, and doing, and pulling off on us, I'll use this"—and the doctor exhibited a huge stomach pump.

"What'll you do with that?" asked Newton faintly.

"I'll put this down into your hold, and unload you, that's what I'll do."

"Is the election over, Mr. Peterson?" asked Newton.

"Yes," answered Mr. Peterson, "and the votes counted."

"Who's elected?" asked Newton.

"Colonel Woodruff," answered Mr. Peterson. "The vote was twelve to eleven."

"Well, dad," said Newton, "I s'pose you'll be sore, but the only way I could see to get in half a vote for Colonel Woodruff was to get poisoned and send you after the doctor. If you'd gone, it would 'a' been a tie, anyhow, and probably you'd 'a' persuaded somebody to change to Bonner. That's what's the matter with me. I killed your vote. Now, you can do whatever you like to me—but I'm sorry I scared mother."

Ezra Bronson seized Newton by the throat, but his fingers failed to close. "Don't pinch, dad," said Newton. "I've been using that neck an' it's tired." Mr. Bronson dropped his hands to his sides, glared at his son for a moment and breathed a sigh of relief.

"Why, you darned infernal little fool," said he. "I've a notion to take a hamestrap to you! If I'd been there the vote would have been eleven to thirteen!"

"There was plenty votes there for the colonel, if he needed 'em," said Haakon, whose politician's mind was already fully adjusted to the changed conditions. "Ay tank the Woodruff district will have a junanimous school board from dis time on once more. Colonel Woodruff is yust the man we have needed."

"I'm with you there," said Bronson. "And as for you, young man, if one or both of them horses is hurt by the run I give them, I'll lick you within an inch of your life— Here comes Dilly driving 'em now— I guess they're all right. I wouldn't want to drive a good team to death for any young hoodlum like him— All right, how much do I owe you, Doc?"

CHAPTER XV

The Glorious Fourth.

A good deal of water ran under the Woodruff district bridges in the weeks between the school election and the Fourth of July picnic at Eight-Mile grove. But few surface indications there were of any change in the little community in this annual gathering of friends and neighbors. Wilbur Smythe made the annual address, and was in rather finer fettle than usual as he paid his fervid tribute to the starry flag, and to this very place as the most favored spot in the best county of the greatest state in the most powerful, intellectual, freest and most progressive nation in the best possible of worlds.

Jim Irwin read the Declaration rather well, Jennie Woodruff thought, as she sat on the platform between Deacon Avery, the oldest settler in the district, and Mrs. Columbus Brown, the sole local representative of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Colonel Woodruff presided in his Grand Army of the Republic uniform.

The fresh northwest breeze made free with the oaks, elms, hickories and box elders of Eight-Mile grove, and the waters of Pickerel creek glimmered a hundred yards away, beyond the flitting figures of the boys who preferred to shoot off their own firecrackers and torpedoes and nigger-chasers, rather than to listen to those of Wilbur Smythe. Still farther off could be heard the voice of a lone lemonade vender as he advertised ice-cold lemonade, made in the shade, with a brand-new spade, by an old maid, as a guaranty that it was the blamedest, coldest lemonade ever sold.

Under the shadiest trees a few incorrigible Marthas were spreading the snowy table-cloths on which would soon be placed the bountiful repasts stored in ponderous wicker baskets and hampers. It was a lovely day, in a lovely spot—a good example of the miniature forests which grew naturally from time immemorial in favored locations on the Iowa prairies—half a square mile of woodland, all about which the green corn rows stood aslant in the cool breeze, waist-high and laid by.

They were passing down the rough board steps from the platform after the exercises had terminated in a rousing rendition of "America," when Jennie Woodruff, having slipped by everybody else to reach him, tapped Jim Irwin on the arm. He looked back at her over his shoulder with his slow gentle smile.

"Isn't your mother here, Jim?" she asked. "I've been looking all over the crowd and can't see her."

"She isn't here," answered Jim. "I was in hopes that when she broke loose and went to your Christmas dinner she would stay loose—but she went home and settled back into her rut."

"Too bad," said Jennie. "She'd have had a nice time if she had come."

"Yes," said Jim, "I believe she would."

"I want help," said Jennie. "Our hamper is terribly heavy. Please!"

It was rather obvious to Mrs. Bonner that Jennie was throwing herself at Jim's head, but that was an article of the Bonner family creed since the decision which closed the hearing at the court house. It must be admitted that the young county superintendent found tasks which kept the schoolmaster very close to her side.

"Sit down, Jim," said Mrs. Woodruff, "you've earned a bite of what we've got. It's good enough, what there is of it, and there's enough of it, such as it is!"

"I'm sorry," said Jim, "but I've a prior engagement."

"Why, Jim!" protested Jennie. "I've been counting on you. Don't desert me!"

"I'm awfully sorry," said Jim, "but I promised. I'll see you later."

One might have thought, judging by the colonel's quizzical smile, that he was pleased at Jennie's loss of her former swain.

"We'll have to invite him longer ahead of time," said he. "He's getting to be in demand."

Jim seemed to be in demand—a fact that Jennie confirmed by observation. He received a dozen invitations as he passed the groups seated on the grass—one of them from Mrs. Cornelius Bonner, who saw no particular point in advertising disgruntlement. The children ran to him and clung to his hands; young girls gave him sisterly smiles and such trifles as chicken drumsticks, pieces of cake and like tidbits. His passage to the numerous group at a square table under a big burr oak was quite an ovation—an ovation of the significance of which he was himself quite unaware.

But Jennie—the daughter of a politician and a promising one herself—Jennie sensed the fact that Jim Irwin had won something from the people of the Woodruff district in the way of deference. Still he was the gangling, Lincolnian, ill-dressed, over-stricken Jim Irwin of old, but Jennie had no longer the feeling that one's standing was somewhat compromised by association with him.

He had begun to put on something more significant than clothes, something which he had possessed all the time, but which became valid only as it was publicly apprehended. He was clearly the central figure of his group, in which she recognized the Bronsons, those queer children from Tennessee, the Simmses, the Talcotts, the Hansens, the Hamms and Colonel Woodruff's hired man, Pete, whose other name is not recorded.

Jim sat down between Bettina Hansen, a flaxen-haired young Brunhilde of seventeen, and Calista Simms—Jennie saw him do it, while listening to Wilbur Smythe's account of the exacting nature of the big law practice he was building up—and would have been glad to exchange places with Bettina.

The repast drew to a close; and over by the burr oak the crowd had grown to a circle surrounding Jim Irwin.

"He seems to be making an address," said Wilbur Smythe.

"Well, Wilbur," replied the colonel, 'you had the first shot at us. Suppose we move over and see what's under discussion."

As they approached the group, they heard Jim Irwin answering something which Ezra Bronson had said.

"You think so, Ezra," said he, "and it seems reasonable that big creameries like those at Omaha, Sioux City, Des Moines and the other centralizer points can make butter cheaper than we would do 'here—but we've the figures that show that they aren't economical."

"They can't make good butter, for one thing," said Newton Bronson cockily.

"Why can't they?" asked Olaf Hansen, the father of Bettina.

"Well," said Newton, "they have to have so much cream that they've got to ship it so far that it gets rotten on the way, and they have to renovate it with lime and other ingredients before they can churn it."

"Well," said Raymond Simms, "I reckon they sell their butter fo' all it's wuth; an' they cain't get within from foah to seven cents a pound as much fo' it as the farmers' creameries in Wisconsin and Minnesota get fo' theirn."

"That's a fact, Olaf," said Jim.

"How do you kids know so darned much about it?" queried Pete.

"Huh!" sniffed Bettina. "We've been reading about it, and writing letters about it, and figuring percentages on it in school all winter. We've done arithmetic and geography and grammar and I don't know what else on it."

"Well, I'm agin' any schoolin'," said Pete, "that makes kids smarter in farmin' than their parents and their parents' hired men. Gi' me another swig o' that lemonade, Jim!"

"You see," said Jim to his audience, meanwhile pouring the lemonade, "the centralizer creamery is uneconomic in several ways. It has to pay excessive transportation charges. It has to pay excessive commissions to its cream buyers. It has to accept cream without proper inspection, and mixes the good with the bad. It makes such long shipments that the cream spoils in transit and lowers the quality of the butter. It can't make the best use of the buttermilk. All these losses and leaks the farmers have to stand. I can prove—and so can the six or eight pupils in the Woodruff school who have been working on the cream question this winter—that we could make at least six cents a pound on our butter if we had a co-operative creamery and all sent our cream to it."

"Well," said Ezra Bronson, "let's start one."

"I'll go in," said Olaf Hansen.

"Me, too," said Con Bonner.

There was a general chorus of assent. Jim had convinced his audience.

"He's got the jury," said Wilbur Smythe to Colonel Woodruff.

"Yes," said the colonel, "and right here is where he runs into danger. Can he handle the crowd when it's with him?"

"Well," said Jim, "I think we ought to organize one, but I've another proposition first. Let's get together and pool our cream. By that, I mean that we'll all sell to the same creamery, and get the best we can out of the centralizers by the co-operative method. We can save two cents a pound in that way, and we'll learn to co-operate. When we have found just how well we can hang together, we'll be able to take up the co-operative creamery, with less danger of falling apart and failing."

"Who'll handle the pool?" inquired Mr. Hansen.

"We'll handle it in the school," answered Jim.

"School's about done," objected Mr. Bronson.

"Won't the cream pool pretty near pay the expenses of running the school all summer?" asked Bonner.

"We ought to run the school plant all the time," said Jim. "It's the only way to get full value of the investment. And we've corn-club work, pig-club work, poultry work and canning-club work which make it very desirable to keep in session with only a week's vacation. If you'll add the cream pool, it will make the school the hardest working crowd in the district and doing actual farm work, too. I like Mr. Bonner's suggestion."

"Well," said Haakon Peterson, who had joined the group, "Ay tank we better have a meeting of the board and discuss it."

"Well, darn it," said Columbus Brown, "I want in on this cream pool—and I live outside the district!"

"We'll let you in, Clumb," said the colonel.

"Sure!" said Pete. "We hain't no more sense than to let any one in, Clumb. Come in, the water's fine. We ain't proud!"

"Well," said Clumb, "if this feller is goin' to do school work of this kind, I want in the district, too."

"We'll come to that one of these days," said Jim. "The district is too small."

Wilbur Smythe's car stopped at the distant gate and honked for him—a signal which broke up the party. Haakon Peterson passed the word to the colonel and Mr. Bronson for a board meeting the next evening. The picnic broke up in a dispersion of staid married couples to their homes, and young folks in top buggies to dances and displays of fireworks in the surrounding villages.

Jim walked across the fields to his home—neither old nor young, having neither sweetheart with whom to dance nor farm to demand labor in its inexorable chores. He turned after crawling through a wire fence and looked longingly at Jennie as she was suavely assisted into the car by the frock-coated lawyer.

"You saw what he did?" said the colonel interrogatively, as he and his daughter sat on the Woodruff veranda that evening. "Who taught him the supreme wisdom of holding back his troops when they grew too wild for attack?"

"He may lose them," said Jennie.

"Not so," said the colonel. "Individuals of the Brown Mouse type always succeed when they find their environment. And I believe Jim has found his."

"Well," said Jennie, "I wish his environment would find him some clothes. It's a shame the way he has to go looking. He'd be nice-appearing if he was dressed anyway."

"Oh, then you haven't heard the news," said the colonel. "Jim's going to have his first made-to-measure suit for Ames. It's all fixed."

"Who's making it?" asked Jennie.

"Gustaf Paulsen, the Dane that's just opened a shop in town."

"A Dane?" queried Jennie. "Isn't he Bettina's uncle?"

"Ratherly," said the colonel jocularly, "seeing as how Bettina's Mrs. Hansen's daughter."

Clothes are rather important, but the difference between a suit made by Atkins, the tailor, and one built by Gustaf Paulsen, the new Danish craftsman, could not be supposed to be crucially important, even when designed for a very dear friend. And Jim was scarcely that—of course not! Why, then, did the county superintendent hastily run to her room, and cry? Why did she say to herself that the Hansens were very good people, and well-to-do, and it would be a fine thing for Jim and his mother—and then cry some more?

Santo Domingo's Sad Story.

When Columbus first landed on Santo Domingo the native population numbered, according to the lowest estimate, 1,000,000 souls. Fifteen years of cruelty and oppression sufficed to reduce their number to less than 60,000, says the Detroit News. Twenty-five years later a wretched remnant of this once happy people, 600 in number, were, through the benevolent exertions of Fr. Las Casas, established in a village by themselves under the last of their chiefs. For many years not a single pure-blooded descendant has existed.

North River Lower Hudson.

The application of the name North river to the lower part of the Hudson dates back to the time of the early Dutch settlement in New Jersey. North river is the historic name of the lower course of the river which flows between Manhattan and the Jerseys. It was north of the New Jersey settlements, just as the Delaware was south, and the two rivers were known to the Dutch colonists as the North river and the South river respectively. —Wide World Magazine.

ATT'Y MURRAY PRACTICING HERE

Francis T. Murray, son of former Sergeant and Mrs. Thomas J. Murray of 31 Livingston street, this city, who recently was informed he had passed the New York state bar examination held June 16 last in Albany, is now practicing in Ulster county, being associated with Cleon B. Murray, assistant district attorney, with offices in this city and Ellenville.

Attorney Murray was born in this city July 23, 1899. His early education was obtained in St. Mary's Parochial School from which he graduated in June, 1912. From there he attended Ulster Academy and Kingston High School, graduating from the latter school in June, 1917. In June of this year Mr. Murray graduated from Fordham University School of Law.

TO CONDUCT INQUEST INTO DUKE'S DEATH.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Greenwich, Conn., Sept. 4.—Coroner John Phelan is here today conducting an inquest into the death of Angier B. Duke, son of Benjamin Duke, of 511 Fifth avenue, New York, who was drowned accidentally at an Indian harbor yacht club float yesterday morning when with a gay party he attempted to get to his yacht anchored in the harbor. Local police secured the names of Duke's party, which fled following the accident and announced them as follows:

Mrs. R. E. Wheelan of Rye, N. Y.; Louise Lawson of 22 West 77th street, New York; Florence Huntley, of 1917 Walton avenue, New York city; Warner Jones of 141 Broadway, New York; Chris Greer of Pelham Bay, N. Y.; and Clyde Marshall, a sailor of Port Washington, N. Y.

Duke and four of his party were seated in his tender at the wharf with Marshall holding the painter when the fifth guest stepped on the gunwale, upsetting the craft. More than 12 hours later Duke's body was found beneath the float by a diver. Duke apparently had been flung headlong against a pile and drowned while unconscious.

U. S. RELIEF MATERIAL AVAILABLE IN HAWAII.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Honolulu, Sept. 4.—Major General Charles P. Summerall, in charge of the military forces of the Hawaiian Islands, has telegraphed the war department at Washington stating that his entire reserve stock of food, shelter tents, field hospitals and medical supplies in the islands is available for immediate shipment to Japan on the transport Cambrai.

General Summerall estimated that he can purchase 500,000 pounds of flour in the open market which can be sent to Japan on the transport.

The Red Cross registers show that there are 20 nurses and 6 physicians, a potential relief unit, in Honolulu for immediate dispatch to Tokio and Yokohama.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

SCOUTS AND CAMPING

"The remarkable trend of the present day among people of all walks of life toward outdoor activity, and especially camping," says a student of the out-of-doors, "is directly traceable to the influence of the boy scout program." With the slogan "Every Scout a Camper," camping among boy scouts is becoming an all-year round feature.

Scouts like everything about camping, from thumbing camp booklets to reading camp statistics, and following are some unique ones, compiled by a scout executive of Walla Walla, Washington:

Two hundred thousand scouts attended scout camps last year for one week or more. They traveled an average of 50 miles each, in going to and from camp, or a total distance of 10,000,000 miles. At the average hiking pace of three miles per hour, it would take 380 years to cover this distance, which by the way, is about 400 times around the world. In an automobile at the rate of 35 miles an hour and with no stops, it would take 33 years.

Each boy scout, it has been estimated, generates at least one-quarter horsepower while taking his morning calisthenics, which would give over 800,000 horsepower, enough to drive a heavy freight train over mountains.

The flag is raised each morning and lowered each evening at camp. At the average speed of 60 feet per minute, 40 hours are consumed each day in this one important part of camp life.

Ten train loads of food are required to feed these scouts. If they were all in one mess line this line would be over 80 miles long.

A scout in water can support about 125 pounds. If all these scout campers were brought together they could support 125 tons or the equivalent of a fair-sized ocean-going boat. The scouts consume over 50,000 gallons of water each day; or more than enough to float this boat.

The boys consume approximately 12,500 steers and all the eggs 18,000 hens would lay in one year.

SCOUT MOTTO: "BE PREPARED"

A boy scout learns how "to help other people at all times." Training in first-aid includes the various ways of carrying injured persons.

SCOUT GETS TEST

Here is how one old foreign lady in Milwaukee learned that scouts do a "Good Turn Daily."

"Our team had a baseball game scheduled," says the doer of the Good Turn, a scout of Troop 11 of that city. "All members were told if they were late they would not be permitted to play. After hurrying through my paper route I was on my way to the game when an old lady who could not speak English asked me to take a long-distance call for her. Was 20 minutes late to the game and could not play."

GOVERNOR HINKLE SAYS:

"It affords me great pleasure to most heartily indorse the Boy Scouts of America and their splendid work in time of disasters, floods and famines. They have loyally and faithfully responded to all emergency calls.

"The scouts of today are the men who will govern our country tomorrow, and a government led by men who have cherished and faithfully kept the oath of the scout is safeguarded against the worst dangers and as a nation we cannot fail."—J. F. Hinkle, Governor of New Mexico.

SCOUT RENDERS FIRST AID

While strolling down a street Scout Gus Phillips of Savannah, Ga., saw a motortruck strike a horse, injuring it. The animal received an ugly flesh wound, which was viewed sympathetically by many bystanders, who were unprepared to do anything more substantial to ease the pain of the suffering animal. Having promptly secured a handful of bandages from scout headquarters nearby, the scout had the situation well in hand and had dressed the wound.

LEWIS DENIES SPLIT RUMOR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4.—Rumors of a split between John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Rinaldo Cappelini, president of the anthracite miners of the Scranton district, were denied today by Lewis.

The reports arose from the fact that Cappelini had been summoned here for a conference. Neither Chris Golden, or Thomas Kennedy, presidents of the two other districts in the hard coal field, were included in the summons.

"We are just going to talk things over," was Lewis's only comment on the reports of a split.

Cappelini was expected here today. He will accompany Lewis to Harrisburg tomorrow, where with other members of the miners committee, negotiations with the operators will be resumed under the good offices of Governor Pinchot.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 4.—The stock market was irregular at the opening today, first prices mainly being below Saturday's close. United States Steel was an exception, advancing fractionally to 93. Rails were active, with Canadian Pacific down ⅛ to 142⅛, Balsimore and Ohio ⅜ to 49, Southern Pacific ½ to 89 and Southern Railway ⅛ to 32⅛. In the oils, Cosden lost ¼ to 30⅛, Pan-American ½ to 59½ and General Asphalt 1/3 to 33⅜. Bethlehem Steel lost ¼ to 53¼.

A deluge of selling orders flooded the market during the forenoon trading and after opening irregular prices broke from 2 to 4 points. Unfavorable European cables were overshadowed by the Tokio tragedy and naturally bankers focused their attention on Japanese securities. Japanese bonds had a sharp drop, more severe than in the London markets today and yesterday. Both railroads and industrials shared in the decline in the market.

The list turned very quiet after the forenoon weakness. A few issues like Gulf States Steel rallied a point from their low levels but as a rule prices changes were confined to fractional limits.

Tell Age of Fish.

Fishermen can tell the age of their fish from its scales. These increase in size annually, two rings being formed each year. The ear stones, which lie on either side of the base of the cranial cavity, afford another means of determining age. Each spring a white ring is formed, and each autumn a black one. Thus the number of black and white rings discloses the fish's age. In the case of flat fish the latter method has been found very reliable, whereas in the cod the scales give a better result.

Largest Body of Fresh Water.

Lake Superior is the largest body of fresh water in the world. Its length, east to west, is about 400 miles, with a mean breadth of about eighty miles, so that its area may be taken as about 31,500 square miles. The maximum depth recorded is 1,008 feet and the height of its surface is about 602 feet above the Atlantic. It receives upward of fifty rivers. The lake embosoms many large and well-wooded islands, the chief of which is Isle Royal.

Near the Year's End.

The last orchids of the year bloom in September and October. They are the ladies' tresses, probably the most common of the orchid family in eastern North America, says Nature Magazine. All country dwellers know their stiff, upright, slightly twisted scapes and long dense whorls of small white blossoms. The two most common are the nodding ladies' tresses and the slender ladies' tresses.

Objet d' Art.

The antique dealer gazed with disapproval at the shrewish wife of his more prosperous competitor. "There she goes," he said. "The dearest lot he ever bought."—London Express.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The funeral of Ulrich Schoether, who died Friday last at the Kingston City Hospital from injuries, having been hit by an automobile at Hunter, was held Sunday with interment in Israel Cemetery at Hunter.

On Sunday, September 2, John W. Moran, husband of Mary Doolin, died at his home in East Kingston. Funeral Wednesday morning from the late home at 9:30 o'clock with a Mass of requiem at St. Colman's Church, East Kingston at 10 o'clock, offered for the repose of his soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery this city.

Lamont Boice, formerly of New York, died at his home, 321 Genesee street, Utica, Sunday morning after a long illness. In May 1922 he was stricken with illness, and seven months ago he went to Utica to live with his brother, James A. Boice. His condition became critical some time ago. Mr. Boice was born in this city September 26, 1869. He was educated in that city and became a druggist. He moved to New York, where he practiced his profession, and where most of the years of his life were spent. During the World War he was employed on Staten Island and had charge of one of the large dispensaries for the government. He never married. Mr. Boice is survived by one brother, James A. Boice of Utica and by three sisters, Mrs. G. H. Hayes and Mrs. Minnie Parmelee of New York, and Mrs. W. G. Fetter of Yonkers.

IRENE CASTLE AGAIN WITH FORMER HUSBAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Irene Castle Treman, famous star of stage and screen who divorced "Bob" Treman, Ithaca society man, today is in camp at Meacham Lake, a resort about thirty miles from this village, at the very spot where she spent her honeymoon with Treman. With her is Treman, who is "still in love with her."

The camping party which is also attended by Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bradford of Saranac Lake, the latter a sister of the dancer, is in the nature of a trial for Treman.

Windham Murder Inquiry.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Windham, Sept. 4. (Special)—The inquiry into the death of 7-year-old Howard Rothenburg whose body was found behind a mill here last week was today transferred to Catskill.

Why Nine Lives.

The saying that a cat has nine lives is a tribute to that animal's wonderful knack of escaping early death. Its body, flexible as steel, gives it remarkable agility, and its padded paws enable it to land safely after a fall that might kill a dog. Its spine is tougher than most animals', while its loosely-fitting skin enables it to take many a nip with no injury to the actual body. The cat tribe, too, has a better-balanced muscular system than most creatures, and so perfectly is its body under control that even when thrown from a height, a cat will generally manage to fall safely on those padded paws. The saying, "nine lives," however, is only derived from the old superstition which regarded 9 and 7 as numbers having mystical significance. So they used to say it took nine tailors to make a man.

HALF MILLION IS ESTIMATE

the dead of stricken cities have been piled into heaps and cremated. Funeral services by scores of religious dignitaries were held at each funeral pyre.

The destruction of the Ichigaya prison released its entire body of 5,700 convicts.

Osaka, Japan, Sept. 4.—Confirmed details of the Tokio and Yokohama horror reaching here today indicate that the Bank of Japan building in Tokio and scores of surrounding buildings were completely destroyed by the unchecked fire late yesterday afternoon.

Martial law is being enforced in the disaster zone and the military authorities are prohibiting all private persons from entering either Tokio or Yokohama.

The situation is horrible beyond description. Thousands and thousands of fear stricken inhabitants are wandering aimlessly to and fro searching amid huge piles of dead for relatives and other loved ones.

All westward bookings to Japan on Toyo Kisen Kaisha vessels are reported to have been cancelled.

The Toyo Kisen Kaisha liner Korea Maru is safe in Yokohama harbor with 2,300 refugees on board.

Shore wireless stations in the vicinity of Tokio and Yokohama do not answer their calls. The only available communication with the stricken cities is via radio to the liner Korea Maru in Yokohama.

Private advices here from Tokio say that 8,000 people were killed when the Fujiyama Spinning Mills collapsed Saturday.

Tokorazawa military air station is in ruins.

At the Theaters.

Gloria Swanson has an excellent supporting cast in her most recent Paramount starring vehicle. "Prodigal Daughters," which comes to the Auditorium today. Playing opposite the star is Ralph Graves. Vera Reynolds, Theodore Roberts and Charles Clary also have important roles. Louise Dresser, Robert Agnew, Maude Wayne, Jiquel Lanoe and Eric Mayne complete the cast. "Prodigal Daughters" is a Sam Wood production.

The final showings of Dorothy Dalton's new Paramount picture, "The Law of the Lawless," will take place at the Orpheum Theater today. Miss Dalton is supported by Theodore Kosloff, Charles de Roche and Tully Marshall. Victor Fleming directed the story which is a tale of life in the Gypsy and Tartar tribes of the country bordering on the Black Sea. Don't miss it. And six acts of vaudeville.

Torture in Thirteenth Century.

The rack and the strappado were in use as methods of torture in southern Europe in the Thirteenth century. The rack was a triangular frame on which the prisoner was stretched and bound, so that he could not move. Cords were attached to his arms and legs, and then connected with a windlass, which, when turned, dislocated the joints of the wrists and ankles. The strappado, or vertical rack, was no less painful. The prisoner, with his hands tied behind his back, was raised by a rope attached to a pulley and windlass to the top of a gallows, or to the ceiling of the torture chamber. He was then let fall with a jerk to within a few inches of the ground. This was repeated several times. The torturers sometimes tied weights to the victim's feet to increase the shock of the fall.

Tortoise Rims Old in China.

Written records do not uphold China's claim to priority in the manufacture of lenses, although there is record of tortoise frames being worn there a very long time ago. The wearing of these frames was restricted by custom, if not by law, to scholars and rulers, as the large shell circle around the eye was supposed to make the wearer resemble an owl, and, therefore, to acquire the quality of wisdom which this greatly overrated bird is supposed to enjoy, says the Detroit News. The wearing of shell rims was believed to insure good fortune and long life for every wearer. Since this luck was believed to be due to the shell, the wearing of rims without lenses was thought to serve equally well, and because it was believed that the larger the frame the greater the luck, the wearing of frames of a very large size was quite common.

Arabia's People.

The population of Arabia is estimated at 5,000,000 or 6,000,000. The language is Arabic, a branch of the Semitic family of tongues, the principal of which is Hebrew. The principal industry of Arabia is raising horses, camels, sheep, cattle and mules. Considerable areas are devoted to agriculture, cereals and coffee being the leading products. There is practically no foreign trade, though coffee is exported to some extent. The general climate is tropical. Arabia is considered an extension of the desert of Sahara, which it resembles in surface features. Much of the interior is a vast tableland, about 8,000 feet in height, broken by mountains and arid deserts. The Euphrates, draining a portion of the north, is the only river of importance.

Crabbe the Realist.

How many of us who write, want to write only about the things that please. How differently did Crabbe act. He did not like at all the conditions under which he was obliged to live and work, but he recognized that it might be of great use to record them in literature, artistically, truthfully, and dispassionately. And he became a great artist by writing about the things he detested . . . to work in this way requires more than self-denial: it requires immense force of character.—Lafcadio Hearn.

SLAVERY IN ULSTER COUNTY

(By AUGUSTUS H. VAN BUREN.)

The Dutch of New Netherland were originally not slave holders. In 1629 the Assembly of Nineteen, that had the management of the affairs of the colony for the West India Company in a communication to the States General said, that the colonists could not compete with the Dutch and Portugese because the Dutch had no slaves and were not used to the employment of them." In the same year the Company agreed "to supply the colonists with as many blacks as they conveniently can." It is evident that some of the colonists did not take kindly to the institution of slavery, because, in 1649, they complained to the States General, that while certain slaves had been manumitted their children were continued in bondage "contrary to all public law, that any one born of a Christian mother should, notwithstanding, be a slave and obliged so to remain." In 1664, just before the surrender to the English, a ship containing 300 negroes came to New York and 250 of them were sold there. The English encouraged the importation of slaves during all the colonial period but along with it went attempts to mitigage their condition. In 1686 the instructions sent to Governor Dongan directed him to find out "the best means to facilitate and encourage the Conversion of negroes and Indians to the Christian Religion."

In 1699 the assembly refused to pass an act urged by Governor Bellomont to promote the conversion of slaves saying that the act "would not go down with the assembly; they having a notion that the negroes being converted to Christianity would emancipate them from their slavery, and loose them from their service, for they have no other servants in this country but negroes." In the same year Governor Bellomont advised the importation of negroes, saying that they could be imported at an expense of about ten pounds ($25) and maintained for nine pence a day. The First Constitution of the state (1777) contained no provision relating to slavery, but the convention adopted a resolution that measures be taken as soon as possible for the abolition of slavery "so that in future ages every human being who breathes the air of this state shall enjoy the privileges of a freeman." Under the Constitution of 1777 negroes, who had the other qualifications, were permitted to vote on the same terms as the whites. The Constitution of 1821 provided that a colored voter must have been a resident of the state for three years, and for one year seized or possessed of a freehold estate worth $250, over and above all debts charged thereon, and on which he has paid a tax. This provision was substantially continued by the Constitutions of 1846 and 1867 but was abrogated by the 15th amendment to the United States Constitution.

In the meantime a number of laws had been passed providing for the gradual abolition of slavery in the state and in 1817 an act was passed which provided that, "every negro, mulatto or mustee, within this state, born before the 4th day of July, 1799, shall, from and after the 4th day of July, 1827, be free" and finally by an act passed December 3rd, 1827, it was provided that "every person born within this state, whether white or colored, is free; every person who shall hereafter be born within this state, shall be free; and every person brought into this state, as a slave, except as authorized by this title, shall be free."

The negroes brought into the colony during the Dutch period were owned by the West India Company and hired out by it to the settlers. They were mainly employed as domestic servants and were in Wildwyck from the time of its settlement. Among those killed during the attack by the Indians on Wildwyck, June 7th, 1663, was a negro of Thomas Chambers. Keaes Tysen sued Cornelis Wynkoop for 400 schepels of wheat, the price of a negro sold him. Wynkoop defended on the ground that the negro was represented to be "hale and sound," whereas he had lost a finger and another finger and thumb were stiff. The court referred the matter to arbitrators who reported that the negro was not sound and Tysen must take him back; which decision was approved by the court.

During the English rule the number of slaves in the colony and in Ulster county gradually increased. In 1698 the Province of New York had a population of 18,067, of which 2,170 were negroes. Ulster and Dutchess counties then had a total population of 1,384, of which 156 were negroes. In 1703 Ulster had a population of 1,649, of which 145 were negroes. In 1714 a total of 2,120, of which 333 were slaves. In 1723 a total of 2,923, of which 566 were slaves. In 1731, a total of 3,728, of which 732 were slaves. In 1737, a total of 4,870, of which 872 were slaves. In 1756, a total of 8,100, of which 1,500 were slaves. In 1771, a total of 13,950, which 1,554 were slaves. In 1786, a total of 21,430, of which 2,662 were slaves. According to the United States census of 1790, Ulster (which then included parts of Orange and Sullivan counties) had a total population of 20,397, of which 2,906 were slaves, distributed as follows: Hurley, 245; Kingston, 711; Mamakating, 51; Marbletown, 374; Middletown, 6; Montgomery, 236; New Marlborough, 58; New Paltz, 302; New Windsor, 117; Newburgh, 57; Rochester, 281; Shawangunk, 350; Wallkill, 103; Woodstock, 15.

The census of 1790 gives the names of those having slaves and the number owned by each. Among them are many well known Ulster county families. In the town of Hurley, John B. Deyo 3, Johannis Hardenbergh 7, Jonathan LeFevre 1, Abraham Crispell 2; Samuel Schoonmaker 2, Benjamin Van Wagenen 2, Timothy Tillson 4, John H. Roosa 1, Cornelius Elting 7, Coonradt Elmendorph 6, Mary Ostrander 3, Wilhelmus Kiersted 1, Peter Wynkoop 4, Cornelius DuBois 1, Lucas Elmendorph 9, Coonradt Newkirk 11, Matthew Ten Eyck 14, Cornelius Wynkoop 15. In the town of Kingston, Tobias Van Steenbergh 3, Jacobus Dederick 3, Valentine F. Trompour 3, Nicholas Schoonmaker 3, Cornelius Burhans 2, Johannis Myer, Jr., 3, Peter Osterhoudt 2, Cornelius Brinck 2, Jacob Burhans 10, Abraham Hoaghtaling 7, Wessells Ten Broeck 17, John Van Leuven 3, William Skepmus 3, William Van Gaasbeck 3, Andrus DeWitt 16, Abraham Hoffman 2, Garret Van Keuren 6, Abraham A. Hasbrouck 3, David De La Mater 7, Henry Elting, Jr., 3, Tobias Van Buren 3, Jacobus Bruyn 4, Cornelius Tappen 1, Cornelius Beekman 2, Benjamin Van Aken 1. In Marbletown, Peter Crispel, Jr., 2, Daniel Brodhead 4, David Bevier 5, James Oliver 6, Matthew Newkirk 9, John Cantine 7, Andries I. DeWitt 12, Solomon Van Wagenen 10. New Paltz, Isaac Freer 1, Roelif I. Elting 4, Abraham Van Dermark 11, Cornelius DuBois 12, Matthew LeFevre 4, Joseph Hasbrouck 13. In Rochester, Joseph DePuy 4, Cornelius Schoonmaker 9, Dirck Westbrook 6, Benjamin Van Wagenen 5, John Krum 4, Daniel Sahler 5. In Shawangunk, Abraham Bevier 7, Zachariah Bruyn 8, Thomas Jansen 15, Andrue DeWitt of Kingston with 16, Cornelius Wynkoop of Hurley and Thomas Jansen of Hurley with 15 each were the largest slave holders in the county.

Slaves were frequently set free by formal instruments of the last will of their owners. September 19, 1759, Mrs. Susanna Bond appeared before the Court of Common Pleas in Kingston by James G. Livingston, Gentleman her attorney, with a manummission freeing "her negroes, Orandata, Orandates, Stradwell and Sateria and her son Thomas and delivered into court four bonds. Pursuant to the acts of Assembly, executed by the said Susanna Bond, Cornelius Lewis and Jurian Mackey dated September 18, 1795, to indemnify all and every city, town, parish or place within this colony where they shall at any time after their manumission live." But the court rejected the security for insufficiency.

By instrument dated November 5, 1782, Benjamin Bogardus of Dutchess county let Matthew Persen of Kingston "have a negro slave named Robin for the term of nine years, Persen to provide Robin with meat, drink, wearing apparel and lodging during the term and at its expiration to deliver him back to Bogardus.

Cornelius Newkerk of Hurley by his will left his slaves to his wife for life and at her death to his heirs. On the 15th day of August, 1800, his widow and his sons executed an instrument, dated on that day, which provided that the slave should have his liberty on that day provided that he do "maintain and support his mother, Gin, an aged negro wench."

Our pious fathers must have diligently read the Scriptures and also must have been great lovers of posey and the classics for here are some of the names they gave their slaves: Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Solomon, Rebecca, Ruth, Leah, Susanna, Luke, John, Paul, Homer, Cicero, Alexander, Annie, Bat, Cipo, Cloe, Jinny, Keiser, Mol, Nan, Robin, Sambo, Sue, Quasshie, Cuffe, Fortune, Mingo, Peg, and Yamma. There is not the slightest evidence in the records that the slaves were ever ill treated. They were, as has been said, they were mostly employed as domestics, were members of the family and a careless, happy, jolly lot.

HEAVIEST TRAFFIC OVER WEEK-END

Hotels and Restaurants Overtaxed and Many Tourists Slept in Cars—New Bridge Having Its Effect.

Traffic through Kingston over Labor Day was perhaps the heaviest which has ever passed over the roads since the advent of the automobile. During the latter part of last week traffic to the mountain resorts was heavy with Labor Day vacationists and people who were bound to the mountains to meet families and friends and take them back to the cities. This condition continued for several days and Sunday the traffic started in the opposite direction when people started to return to their homes in the cities. All day Sunday and Monday there was a constant stream of automobiles passing through this city. Saturday night and Sunday night every hotel was crowded to the door, rooming houses were filled and the hotel men were compelled to seek private houses to care for their guests who applied for sleeping quarters. Many automobil parties failing to find rooms either continued their journey or slept in their cars. On many of the streets were cars in which the occupants were trying to snatch a few minutes' rest before continuing their trip. In some instances people went from house to house in an attempt to get a bed.

The hotel men made every effort to take care of as many people as possible but soon exhausted their list of private homes, where emergency guests are often sent.

Since the opening of the Rondout Creek bridge thousands of people who formerly waited for the ferries across the river or the Rondout Creek have passed over the bridge to seek less congested places to cross to the other side of the river or cross where the ferry service is better. This in a way relieves congestion in Kingston. The traffic officer stationed at the entrace to the bridge was kept on the jump all day Sunday and Monday and at times the line of cars crossing the bridge was continuous.

The number of cars from New Jersey which pass through town is increasing each year and this season there were about as many cars with the red license as with the blue. With the opening of the Rondout Creek bridge it gives residents of New Jersey a continuous route over good roads without the annoyance of waiting for a ferry. This fact is being spread annually and each season more New Jersey people are coming to the Catskills.

This week will see the big mountain resorts close for the season, although a small number of people will remain over for a few more days until colleges open. The number, however, will be very small and will be cared for mostly by the smaller family boarding houses.

SCHWALBACH'S WRECKER BUSY

The wrecker and mechanics from the West Shore Garage, W. A. Schwalbach, proprietor, were very busy over the holiday making repairs and towing cars out of ditches in this locality. On Sunday evening the wrecker towed to its garage a Ford sedan owned by M. Yonan of Yonkers from Shokan. The sedan was very badly damaged. Mr. Yonan was taken to the Kingston City Hospital.

On Monday a Buick car owned by a Mr. LeVine of New York city was ditched at Eddyville and required the services of the wrecker. No one was hurt. After repairs the party proceeded on its journey.

The Ford sedan of R. A. Atkins of Port Ewen turned over at Greenkill Park Monday and was badly damaged. Mr. Atkins received severe injuries to one of his legs. After being repaired the car was taken to his garage in Port Ewen.

A Pierce Arrow truck was straightened out by the wrecker at Glenerie. The truck went into a ditch and was slightly damaged. After repairs it continued on its journey. A Mr. Canto of long Island was the owner and driver. No one was hurt.

A Marmon sedan hit a tree on the St. Remy hill Monday evening and it was badly damaged. The sedan was owned by a Mr. Rosensweig of Long Island. No one was injured. The Marmon proceeded, following repairs.

TWO BATTLESHIPS SINK TOMORROW

Army Airplanes To Bomb Old Virginia And New Jersey Off Cape Hatteras.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Aboard Army transport San Mihiel off Fortress Monroe, Va., Sept. 4.—Bearing a distinguished company of government officials, army and navy officers, foreign military attaches and the usual complement of newspaper men and photographers, the army transport San Mihiel is enroute today to a point off Cape Hatteras, where, tomorrow the old battleships Virginia and New Jersey will be sent to a watery grave by army airplane bombers.

Included in the party are General John J. Pershing, Major General Eli Helmick, Admiral Shoemaker, Senator L. Heisler Ball, eighteen members of congress, the military attaches of France, Great Britain, Spain, Poland, Argentina, Italy, Japan, Cuba and Brazil, and several hundred army and navy officers.

If the carefully laid plans of the army air service do not miscarry the two obsolete battleships will find their last resting place in fifty fathoms of water at a point south of Diamond Shoals Lightship before sunset tomorrow. While the bombing takes place the navy department will have a fleet of five destroyers stationed at equal intervals between the targets and the shore as a patrol to protect navigation, and effect rescues in event of a forced landing by any of the planes.

The second bombardment group at Langley Field will conduct the warfare against the two ships, the sinking of these vessels being the culmination of summer maneuvers.

A special aridrome has been established on Cape Hatteras and operations will be controlled from that point.

According to officials of the army air service one of the main purposes of the bombing is to obtain data as to the most effective altitude from which accuracy can be obtained. If such an altitude can be determined, officials said, it will serve as a basis for plans of aerial bombing in actual warfare, and also of the defensive measures which will be employed to protect the objective.

Contingent on satisfactory weather conditions, the program calls for the first attack to be conducted at an altitude of 10,000 feet by a flight of seven planes. This will be followed by a second attack at an altitude of 6,000 feet, while the third attack will be at an altitude of 3,000 feet. Each of these preliminary flights will carry two 1,100 pound bombs, two 2,000 pound bombs and thirty 100 pound bombs all loaded and fused.

If the two battleships are afloat after this bombardment they will be attacked as follows:

Against the first ship the attack will be by a flight of seven Martin bombers, each loaded with two 1,100 pound bombs. This flight will attack in column, dropping both bombs at once. The planes will follow one another at close intervals. Seven other Martin bombers, each loaded with a 2,000 pound bomb, will act as support in this attack, but will not drop their bombs unless directed to do so.

The second battleship will be attacked by seven Martin bombers each loaded with a 2,000 pound bomb. These bombs will be dropped at once in a pattern around the ship and the attack will also be supported by another squadron of Martin machines.

Smoke screens will be laid by airplanes preliminary to the attack on both battleships.

PLUMBERS ENJOY BAKE SUNDAY AT LAKE KATRINE

Thirty-two members of Local 223, Plumbers, Gas Fitters and Steam Fitters Association, partook of a clambake, their annual event, at Lake Katrine, Sunday afternoon, and all did justice to the bake served by John J. Cuneo. A feature of the event was a demonstration by Arthur H. Bush in line casting into the waters of the lake followed by various methods of luring fish from the waters, but owing to the water being ruffled he was unable to catch any of the large black bass which he was told were in the lake.

SPEEDERS AND DRUNKS IN COURT

William Bush, a middle-aged man of this city, met some friends Saturday night. He next awoke behind the bars in the county jail. His next recollection was facing Judge Schirick in police court this morning and paying a $10 fine.

"Not Guilty," Says Frank.

Frank Gardeski, 21 years old, was arrested Saturday night by Joseph Bapo for creating a disturbance in his store at No. 17 Hasbrouck avenue. Frank says he was not disorderly and the hearing will be held later.

"Needed Some Change."

Thomas Scully, who says he works on the farm at the Benedictine Hospital, was caught soliciting tourists for loose change at the West Shore station on Monday by West Shore Detective Tierney, who placed Thomas under arrest. This morning on Thomas's promise to return to the farm sentence was suspended.

Sidewalk for Bed.

George Armbruster of Golden Hill was found drunk and asleep on the sidewalk on North Front street at 2 o'clock this morning by Officer Peter J. Camp. When George faced the judge he had a bad cut on his forehead which he got during the night.

"What's your name?" asked Judge Schirick.

George informed him.

"It should be "Headbruster," retorted Judge Schirick as he eyed the scalp wound on George's head.

As it was George's first offense he was fined $5 which he paid and was advised to see a doctor and have his wound dressed.

Tried To Stab Another.

Harry Palmer, a negro employed on Lynch's brickyard, was arrested Monday evening by Special Officer Messinger on the Strand on a charge of disorderly conduct in attempting to stab his friend, Thomas Felton, with a knife. Judge Schirick fined Harry $10. He lacked the money and was committed to jail for ten days.

Used Profane Language.

Joseph Thornton, a negro, was arrested by Officer Leonard Monday evening on a charge of using profane language. He also was fined $10, and not having it was committed to the county jail for ten days.

Speeders Forfeit Bail.

The following holiday speeders all forfeited $15 each cash bail for failure to appear in police court today:

George McCarthy, New York; Sam Grosshandler, New York; Patrick Garland, Jersey City; Samuel Span and Martin Weiner, Putnam, N. J.; Rudolph Schneider, Brooklyn; Joseph C. Hauman, New York.

Harold J. Welch of Stamford, Conn., forfeited $5 cash bail for failure to answer to a charge of cutting a police standard.

Other speeders arrested Labor Day who will have a hearing later were: Jacob J. Dorman, New York; Harry Dondo, New York; and William Riseley.

President Alfredo Zayas, of Cuba, is facing a serious crisis, both inside his island and in his relations with the United States Government, which are admitted to be strained.

MILTON.

Milton, Sept. 4 The Home Bureau will hold its annual election Friday afternoon, September 7, at the Community House at 3 o'clock. The following nominations have been made by the committee: Chairman, Mrs. Winfield Bailey; vice chairman, Miss Winifred Discoll; Mrs. E. W. Martin, Mrs. Clarence Dayton, secretary; Mrs. P. V. Banker, Mrs. J. Harold Clarke, Mrs. J. R. Woolsey, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Alfred C. Jenkins, nutrition leader; Mrs. Walter McMichael, Mrs. E. W. Martin, assistant; household management, Mrs. C. R. Taber. All members and all who will join the Home Bureau for 1924 are entitled to vote at this election.

Mrs. Charles Hulshart and young daughter of Bayonne, N. J., are visiting at the home of Mrs. Edgar Clarke, Jr.

The Maid's and Matron's Club will hold a supper at the Community House Thursday evening, September 6. There will also be dancing at St. James Hall. The supper and dance are given for the benefit of the library building fund.

A meeting of the Ladies' Needlecraft Society will be held at the home of Mrs. P. A. Lyons Tuesday afternoon, September 11 at 3 o'clock.

Charged With Assault.

Isaac Beatty was brought to the Ulster county jail on Monday night by Constable Michael McCullough of East Kingston, having been arrested on a warrant charging him with assault in the third degree. He will be taken before Justice Walter Webber in the town of Ulster for a hearing.

U. S. ORGANIZING FIRST RELIEF

Red Cross Starts Fund With $110,000 and Every Chapter Will Receive Contributions—50 Vessels Taking Supplies.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Just as American vessels blazed the trail into medieval Japan half a century ago and opened up Nippon to the commerce of the world, so today are American ships leading the world across the Pacific carrying relief to the Island Empire in its hour of greatest need.

All over the western part of the Pacific today American naval and merchant vessels are speeding toward Japan to carry what succor they are capable of to millions of homeless and stricken Japanese, suffering from the yet half told horrors of the world's greatest calamity.

The fifty vessels comprising the American Asiatic fleet are either en route to the devastated sea coast or are loading supplies of food, medicine and clothing at the nearest available ports; shipping board vessels have been diverted from their normal schedules and ordered at full speed on similar missions; from the headquarters of the American army in the Phillippine Islands two army transports, the Meigs and the Merritt, are taking on reserve supplies and will shortly be under way.

America's response to Japanese calls for help has been instantaneous.

Meanwhile, today saw the inauguration of a nation wide drive throughout the United States for funds to keep the relief moving in a steady stream. Every Red Cross chapter in the country is authorized to accept contributions, not alone of money, but also of food and clothing supplies for the millions of destitute. Red Cross officials estimated that within a very short time there will be a steady stream of money and supplies flowing from the western coast of America to the devastated coast of Japan.

The nucleus of what probably will be one of the greatest relief funds in history is $110,000 appropriated by the American Red Cross from its reserve funds. More will be forthcoming, officials said, as time lifts the veil on the terrible catastrophe and reveals the extent of damage and suffering.

Thus both government officials and Red Cross agencies feel that they are more or less working in the dark. The breakdown of the cables and the chaotic conditions that prevail in Japan have prevented them from getting a clear picture of just what is needed, but convinced that the calamity is perhaps the greatest in the world's history, they are not waiting for details before acting.

CULLOTON READY FOR PHILLIES WITH FORSYTHE IN RESERVE

It is altogether likely that Bud Culloton will start the game against the Philadelphia Nationals on Wednesday with Rube Forsythe ready to go in at any time. Neither one of these pitchers have done any hard work within the past few days so that they should be in excellent shape for tomorrow's big game.

Who Manager Arthur Fletcher will use in the game is not known. It may be that he will use Jimmy Ring in the box for two or three innings although this is not an assured fact. If he does not use Ring he has Behan, Head, Glazner, Betts and Couch to pick from.

JAP CITIES THAT ARE HARDEST HIT

Seacoast Was Frequented by Empire's Upper Classes and Fatalities Among Them Are Heavy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 4.—All the principal summer resorts of Japan apparently were wiped out in the great catastrophe, officials of the Japanese embassy said today after a study of press reports. Three of the empire's greatest resorts, housing the summer homes of Japan's richest merchants, were in the group of cities reported destroyed.

These were the cities of Kamakaura, having a population of 18,000; Odawara, 23,000; and Hachioji, 40,000.

All three are seacoasts cities, with fishermen's families in the majority of their population. A huge tidal wave, following the earlier earthquakes, was said to have completely inundated the cities with great loss of life.

Embassy officials today feared for the lives of hundreds of the empire's most prominent citizens who are known to spend their summers at country estates along the sea coast. The territory frequented by the wealthier Japanese, the embassy stated, appears to have been practically wiped out.

The population of other cities, reported destroyed, were cited by embassy officials, as follows:

Chiba, 33,000. Kawagushi, 14,000, Kofu, 56,000; Gotomba, 8,000; Koyama, 17,000; Mishima, 15,000; Atami, 8,000; Shimeda, 7,000; Ito, 12,000; Shizoka, 74,000. Nagoya, 430,000; Yokohama, 500,000, and Tokio, about 4,000,000.

With scores of other towns situated in the devasted area, embassy officials believed fully 10,000,000 people were in the path of destruction. They were fearful that ultimately the death toll will mount to hundreds of thousands of persons because of the crowded condition of residential sections.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES IN THE BIG LEAGUES

The Giants gained an even break, to say nothing of a few points in the pennant race, by beating the Braves, 3 to 2, in the first game. They lost the second, however, 8 to 1.

Seven White Sox pitchers were used up during a double defeat by the Tigers, 14 to 4, and 6 to 5.

The Reds dropped back in the pennant race by finishing second to the Pirates, 7 to 2.

Just to make the race more jovial, the Yanks knocked the Athletics off twice in succession, 2 to 1 and 7 to 4.

The Browns obliged with a triple play in the opening game but this did not prevent them from losing both to the Indians 4 to 2 and 5 to 2.

The Phils and Dodgers divided the spoils for the day, the former winning the first, 4 to 2, and losing the second, 5 to 4.

A four run rally in the ninth gave the Red Sox a 5 to 4 decision over the Senators in the first game but the latter won the second, 7 to 3.

Hornsby's homer gave the Cards a 1 to 0 victory over the Cubs in the opener but O'Farrell's single in the tenth won the second for the Cubs, 5 to 4.
